JAPAN FORMALLY RECOGNISES MANCHUKUO

Drs. Ullrich (left) and Piquani, pilots of the "American Nurse."

ATLANTIC FLIGHT

PLANE NEARING ROME

Rome, Sept. 14. The American aeroplane, American Nurse, which set out from New York early yesterday morning on a nonstop flight to Rome is nearing the end of her journey.

The machine was sighted at nine o'clock this evening over Sardinia. It was flying very low in order to avoid heavy clouds and it is expected in Rome in the next few hours. The American Nurse is being piloted by Dr. William Ullrich and Dr. Leon Piquani, while Miss Edna Newcomer, a hospital nurse, has accompanied them as a passenger.

It was Miss Newcomer's plan to make a parachute descent at the termination of the flight, but this part of the programme will doubtless be abandoned if the machine arrives, as is expected, while it is still dark.—Reuter.

REVOLT LEADER OUSTED

TAKES FLIGHT WITH 70 PLANES

Santiago, Sept. 14. The coup of Air-Commandant Merino has proved short-lived, or, at least, he has been pushed into the background by the men he placed into power.

Following dissensions between the new leaders, Merino fled to El Bosque airport, where he apparently ordered the Air Force to disperse.

When a company of infantry was despatched to the headquarters of the Air Force with instructions to take charge, they found that all seventy planes stationed there have vanished.

It is officially stated that the country is quiet.

The Commander-in-Chief, General Blanco, has now assumed the Presidency.—Reuter.

PRINCE OF WALES RETURNS

FLIES TO ENGLAND FROM CONTINENT

London, Sept. 14. The Prince of Wales reached Paris from Biarritz by train this morning and played a round of golf at Fontainebleau with existing Alfonso of Spain. The Queen of Spain accompanied the Prince.

CEREMONY OVER AT 9.10 A.M.

SHANGHAI AND NANKING EXCITEMENT

WHAT REPERCUSSIONS?

Changchun, Sept. 15. THE CEREMONY OF FORMAL RECOGNITION OF THE MANCHUKUO GOVERNMENT BY JAPAN WAS COMPLETED AT 9.10 THIS MORNING.

Everywhere in China, notably in Shanghai and Nanking, the announcement is expected to cause trouble, though elaborate precautions have been taken to prevent disorders. Reuter's reports early this morning indicated that the populace was keyed up to a high pitch of excitement.

The Japanese have taken the precaution of sending strong naval forces to Shanghai, Nanking and Hankow.

CHINA PRINTS SPECIAL STAMPS

(Telegraph Special.)

Shanghai, Sept. 15. Excitement among the Chinese populace in Shanghai and Nanking is intensifying as the hour of Japan's recognition of the Manchukuo Government approaches.

The people are keyed up to fever pitch and trouble is expected though what form it will take cannot be foreseen. Every possible precaution is being taken both by the Chinese and Japanese.

The Japanese have strong naval forces at Shanghai, Nanking and Hankow. There were persistent rumours in Shanghai this morning that the Japanese had ordered a landing at Nanking but this appears to be without foundation.

The Mayor has prohibited public meetings and demonstrations for the rest of the week and has issued an appeal, urging the masses not to allow their feelings to sway them in the direction of disorder.

SPECIAL STAMPS.

At the same time symptomatic of the situation, the Ministry of Communications has ordered the use of a special stamp during the week beginning September 18 bearing characters which interpreted mean: "Remove the Disgrace."

MARTIAL LAW AT NANKING

All Demonstrations Prohibited

Nanking, Sept. 15. Martial law was declared at Hsiakwan, the waterfront suburb of Nanking, last night.

All traffic was brought to a halt some distance from the O.S.K. Wharf and was not allowed to proceed further.

Extra patrols have been placed on the streets throughout the capital, the watchfulness being particularly notable in the foreign section of the capital.

All demonstrations have been prohibited.—Reuter.

The most careful preparations have been taken against disorder.

escape, though what repercussions there will be it is difficult to forecast.

NOTES TO POWERS.

It is understood that the Mr. Lo Wen-kan has been drafting lengthy Notes to the signatories of the Nine-Power Treaty which he intends to despatch immediately Japan's official recognition of the Manchukuo Government is announced. The ceremony is due to take place at Changchun at eleven o'clock this morning.

It is believed that Mr. Lo Wen-kan proposes to ask the United States to call a conference of the Treaty signatories.—Reuter.

MARINES GOING UP FROM MANILA

Over 400 Men Aboard Transport

Manila, Sept. 14. The detachment of United States Marines stationed in Shanghai will be augmented in a day or two by between 400 and 500 men, who went up to-day aboard the U.S. transport Henderson.

It is stated at American Army headquarters here that it is purely a routine matter and that the men are being sent as a relief. Nevertheless, it is perhaps fortunate that greater strength will be present in Shanghai during a critical period.

BIG CATCHES OF HERRINGS

TRAWLERS HAVE GOOD LUCK

London, Sept. 14. No fewer than 211 crans or more than 200,000 herrings, the largest catch this season, were brought to Great Yarmouth yesterday by the Lowestoft trawler "Feasible". The Yarmouth trawler "Achievable" landed 180,000 herrings.—British Wireless.

POLICE LAUNCH RAMMED

SUNK BY FERRY AT YAUMATI

2 A M MISHAP

An alarming experience befel Sergeant Feeley and other occupants of No. 5 police launch about 2 o'clock this morning, when the craft was rammed and sunk by the Yaumati Ferry launch, Man Sang, just inside the Yaumati typhoon shelter.

The incident occurred on the return of the Man Sang from Hongkong, when, just as she was entering the Yaumati breakwater, she struck the police launch amidships. It began to sink her immediately.

Sergeant Feeley was the only European officer on board at the time, being in charge, and he with the crew escaped with nothing worse than a ducking. All were in the water for some time before being picked up by the Man Sang.

After the collision, the police launch rapidly settled and this morning only her funnel was visible above the water. The damage to the Man Sang was practically negligible.

U. S. AMATEUR GOLF

MCRUVIE DEFEATED

OUIMET BREAKS A RECORD

Baltimore, Sept. 14. Eric McRuvie, the only British contender to pass into the competition proper in the American Amateur Golf Championship, was eliminated in the first round to-day.

This is the match play stage of the competition and McRuvie was beaten by three up and two to play by Yates, a comparatively little known American player.

The match which attracted the biggest gallery also provided the most sensational exhibition of golf. Francis Ouimet beat Voight by six up and five to play, despite the fact that Voight was playing first-class golf.

Ouimet, however, played superlatively well. He did the first nine holes in 30 strokes, six under par, giving Voight not a chance.

Ouimet's feat created a championship record. The previous best over nine holes was 31, set by Bobby Jones when he won the championship in 1927.—Reuter.

BONUS DEMAND REVIVED

QUICK REFUSAL BY PRESIDENT

Washington, Sept. 14. The action of the Resolutions Committee of the American Legion Convention now meeting at Portland, Oregon, in adopting by 21 votes to 9, a resolution asking for the immediate payment of the War Veterans Bonus, has drawn an immediate response from President Hoover.

The President indicates that there is no possibility that he will change his attitude. He says he has consistently opposed the payment and he must, in the public interest, continue his opposition.

He points out that the payment of the bonus would involve the provision of $2,250,000,000 and that such a payment would be fatal to the entire recovery programme.

The Convention's Foreign Relations Committee has favourably reported to the Legion on resolutions denouncing the cancellation of war debts and opposing the adherence of the United States to the World Court.—Reuter.

GIANT CUNARD

Possible Resumption of Work

London, Sept. 14. It is understood that conversations regarding a possible resumption of work on the new 73,000-ton Cunard liner at Clydebank, took place yesterday and to-day between Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, and Sir Thomas Royden, a Director of the Cunard Company, at the home of the latter, Tillymore House, Aberdeenshire.

Meanwhile, the regular meeting was held at Liverpool of the other Directors of the Cunard Company. The two Ministers have left for London.—British Wireless.

NEW PLANE FOR R.A.F.

LATEST AMPHIBIAN AIRCRAFT

London, Sept. 14. An important extension to the scope of the work of the Royal Air Force, is marked by an order for "Cloud" amphibian aircraft which has been placed with Saunders-Roe Limited. These aircraft can operate on land, water and in the air.

With the wheels wound down into position the aircraft can take off from an ordinary land aerodrome and when the pilot has wound the wheels up into position at the sides of the boat, the hull can alight on water.

When taken ashore, the machine can taxi to the slipway and the wheels having been wound down can taxi up the slipway without further preparation. The latter from an operational point of view represents a great advance.

Fitted with two Armstrong-Siddeley double Mongoose engines of 340 horse-power, the machines can cruise at 100 miles an hour with a top speed of 120 miles hour. Their endurance with a full load is four hours.—British Wireless.

FOREIGN LEGION DISASTER

TRAIN CRASHES INTO RAVINE

50 KILLED: 80 INJURED

Paris, Sept. 14.

Over a hundred soldiers of the Foreign Legion were killed and seriously injured to-day in a terrible disaster to a French troop train in Algeria.

Only the briefest details of the catastrophe have come through, but Oran messages state it has been established that fifty were killed and 80 seriously hurt.

The train was carrying, it is understood, 610 officers, N.C.O.'s and men of the Foreign Legion in the region of Tlemcen, near the headquarters of the Legion, when it ran off the line and crashed into a ravine.

The disaster is believed to have been due to a subsidence of the permanent way. Carriages were splintered and telescoped and few aboard the train escaped without injury, minor or serious.—Reuter.

CHINA IMPRESSES LEAGUE

ALL OBLIGATIONS BEING MET

Geneva, Sept. 14.

The announcement that China is meeting all her obligations, despite the loss of revenue arising out of the events in Manchuria and Shanghai, has produced a most favourable impression in the League of Nations Secretariat.

The Chinese Government has just notified the Secretariat of the payment of $349,000 which includes an instalment on account of arrears and a contribution for the current year, besides $25,000 on account of the expenses of the Lytton Commission.

The Chinese Finance Minister further announces that China will fulfil all her international loan obligations, despite the fact that the salt revenue from Manchuria has not been transferred to Nanking.

Simultaneously, the Japanese Government has informed the Secretariat of the payment of $50,000 as the Japanese share of the Lytton Commission expenses.—Reuter.

HARBIN TRAIN SMASH

AMERICAN ESCAPES BANDITS

Harbin, Sept. 15.

Two Americans were aboard the C.E.R. express which crashed down an embankment some forty miles from Harbin, killing or injuring over a hundred persons, during the week-end.

Mr. Henry Hilgard Villard, son of the editor of the Nation, was one, and Mr. Henry W. Kinney, in the employ of the South Manchurian Railway, was another.

It is learned that Mr. Kinney was captured by the bandits responsible for the disaster, but managed to escape.

The anti-climax of the bonus army's long struggle was reached in this scene at Ideal Park, Johnstown, when the remnants of the B.E.F. agreed to disperse after an appeal by Mayor McCloskey. Although many dissenters seemed determined to cling to their camp, the majority of the vets started for home after McCloskey told them that W. W. Waters, "commander" of the army, had failed to gain permission for a camp in Maryland. Picture shows McCloskey (in circle) making his appeal. Arrow designates one of the corps of nurses.

LEAD YEAR BRIDE

by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Cherry Dixon, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, married Dan Phillips, newspaper reporter, after a quarrel with her parents. It is a Leap Year marriage and Cherry does the proposing.

She and Dan move into a cheap apartment and Cherry's first struggle with housework is discouraging. Dixie Shannon, movie critic of the News, is friendly. Cherry meets handsome Max Pearson, also of the News who tries to make love to her. After several weeks Cherry's mother becomes seriously ill. The girl goes home and there is reconciliation with her parents. Pride will not allow her to accept financial aid from them however. Mr. and Mrs. Dixon depart, seeking another climate to improve the mother's health.

Brenda Vail, magazine writer, comes to Wellington and Dan meets her. She asks him to collaborate in writing a play. Dan begins to spend most of his evenings at Miss Vail's apartment. Dixie tries to warn Cherry that there is gossip about Brenda and Dan but Cherry will not listen.

Dan asks Cherry about a short story he wrote weeks before. She says it was destroyed, deliberately telling an untruth.

CHAPTER XI.

Cherry slipped the pie into the oven, closed the door and straightened with a sigh. Her shoulders and arms ached. She knew she should not have tried to bake on cleaning day but the apples would have spoiled if she had not used them. Apple pie was Dan's favourite dessert too.

She looked at the clock and saw that it was almost 6. Time to set the table.

Cherry was wearing her oldest house-dress. It was torn and smeared with dust but she did not think of that. Her hair was hidden beneath a towel pinned on for a dust cap and there were black smudges on her cheeks. From floor to ceiling the apartment was in epic and span order but Cherry herself had never been less presentable. She had given the apartment a thorough cleaning, shaken the rugs, swept and dusted and washed the windows. It had all taken longer than she had expected.

Cherry opened the gate table and spread out the cloth. Usually she took pains to make the table attractive but tonight dishes and silver went on carelessly.

She was back in the kitchen stirring the stew made from last night's beef roast when Dan's key sounded in the lock. Cherry did not turn but called, "That you, Dan?"

way. "Great Scott!" Dan exclaimed, "what have you been doing to yourself?"

Cherry looked up in surprise. "Why—I—oh, I guess I forgot to take the towel off my head. I've been cleaning house. Everything's done except the bathroom window. Will you wash it for me, Dan, while I finish getting dinner on the table?"

The young man frowned. "Can't it wait until to-morrow?"

"I promised myself I'd have this work done to-night. If you don't want to do it say so and I'll finish it after a while. I didn't think you'd mind doing that little bit. I've scrubbed and slaved until I can hardly—"

It was unusual for Cherry to complain but to-night she was really tired. She had tried to crowd too much work into a single day and every muscle in her body seemed to protest.

"Oh—all right!" Dan grumbled. "I'll do it."

He rolled up his sleeves and Cherry pinned an apron about him. She gave him the cleaning powder, a basin of water and clean dusters. Dan disappeared and Cherry went on with preparations for the meal.

She mixed the salad and poured the stew into a serving bowl. Dan didn't like stew but to-night he would have to eat it. Everything was ready except the pie. Cherry glanced into the oven, turned the flame higher.

"Haven't you finished yet, Dan?" she asked.

He was rubbing the window pane laboriously. Cherry stepped forward. "Up there," she pointed. "There's a streak that isn't clean."

Dan's exclamation was smooth-creased. "Why don't you hire someone to come in and do this for you?" he demanded. "Don't you think I've done a day's work at the office?"

"I guess you know why I don't hire anyone to help me! It's because I haven't money to pay them."

"And that's because I don't make enough! Is that it? You might as well say it. That's what me of such things? Do I ever complain about money? Don't I do everything in the world to save? I've worked all day—"

"Worked? What do you think I've been doing? If you really had to do a day's work once in a while maybe you'd know how it feels to be tired!"

Tears smarted in Cherry's eyes but she was determined Dan should not see them. She could not trust herself to speak.

They had never quarrelled so before. There was nothing over which they were disagreeing now. Both were tired and both were suffering from "nerves." One word from either of them just then could have set everything right but neither of them spoke that word.

Dan finished polishing the window pane and stepped back. "There," he said grudgingly. "Does that suit you?"

The girl did not reply. The odor of something burning had reached her nostrils. The pie in the oven! Cherry ran to the kitchen and pulled the oven door open. Thick smoke rolled out. Cherry reached for a holder but found none. She grabbed the nearest object—a tea towel—and lifted out the pie.

The hot, sugary liquid bubbled over the edge of the crust and burned her hand. Cherry cried out in pain. She dropped the pie on the shelf and held her hand under running water from the tap. The pie was ruined. The blaze beneath the oven must have been hotter than she had thought. The top crust, instead of being a golden-brown, was charred and black. The odor of burning apple juice was offensive.

Dan stood in the doorway, surveying the scene. "Well," he said, "I guess we don't have pie for dinner." He moved to the window and raised them.

"Cold air swept into the room. It pulled the food and the dishes going ahead with the meal until the smoke was gone. In five minutes the atmosphere cleared. Cherry disappeared into the dressing room and returned with tell-tale red lines about her eyes. She and Dan sat down at the table and the meal began. Cherry, if she had been her own vivacious self, would have looked attractive in spite of her soiled, torn frock. She could have laughed and Dan would not have noticed the grimy costume. She did not look attractive now. Tears had smudged the black marks on her face. Her lips pressed in a hard, tight line to keep from trembling.

Dan spoke once or twice as though trying to make overtures at friendliness but they were not accepted. Cherry's answers were polite. Too polite. There was a long interval of silence in which the girl was aware that the meal was hopeless. The stew was cold and the salad contained too much salt. She had counted on the pie to retrieve a meal of left-overs. Cherry was so miserable she would not have noticed what she was eating if not had been for Dan.

Why didn't he tell her he was sorry for those hateful things he had said? Why didn't he cover her hand with his own and say "Cherry, I was a beast but it was because I've had a hard day. Forgive me, darling!" Why didn't he take her in his arms and ask her to forget those cruel words?

Dan Phillips did none of these things. He ate little of the food. The meal was over almost as soon as it had begun. While Cherry gathered up the dishes, Dan sat barricaded behind his newspaper. The girl had almost decided she could stand the silent evening

Captain Wolfgang von Gronau, who is expected in Hongkong on his round the world trip next week. Map shows his itinerary during his Atlantic crossing.

"I'm going out for a while," he said shortly.

Cherry forgot her pose. "But, Dan," she said, "I thought we might go somewhere together this evening. See a movie maybe. I thought—"

"I'm sorry," Dan interrupted. "I've made other plans."

Anger she could not control flashed in the girl's voice. "It's strange," she said, "but whenever there's anything I want to do you always have other plans! We never go out together any more. You haven't taken me anywhere for a week! All I do is stay home and—"

"I know!" Dan assured her bitterly. "All you do is stay home and slave. I can rectify the rest of it for you backwards. It comes from having a worthless, good-for-nothing husband. I'm very sorry for you, but in keeping with my role as the worthless husband I'll have to remind you that I've

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

You will be in velvet at the first Autumn dinner parties if you are wise.

For the new suede velvet, as dull and lustrous as anything you ever saw or touched, is moulding itself to the fashion silhouette in a beguiling manner.

The woman shown gazing at her mirrored reflection is wearing a light-coloured velvet that sheathes the hips closely, follows a brassiere effect across the front, and has two velvet straps that meet in a point at the neck, starting at the low decollete.

A band of kolinsky, which goes around the neck in front, fastens at the waist in back, where the two ends of the fur meet.

There is nothing for the woman who is seated to grow excited about, since she is sure that her dark velvet gown, with its new high empire silhouette, will bring her through the evening successfully.

The cape treatment is as popular now as in the summer, and the two velvet flowers on the bosom of her gown add interest. The back doesn't sink to any depths at all. The form-moulding line is followed by the velvet.

The third frock, which goes in for a floral outburst, strings white flowers around its shoulder cape. The cowl neck, as much the vogue as ever, is used. And ends of the velvet that make the gown tie in front at the left side.

This gown also features the capelet effect in its loose, draped sleeves. Sleeves are assuming an important role in formal frocks.
An arm that slips out of a flowing drapery of some sort is supposed to be much more alluring. Then, too, as shoulders broaden through this effect, hips retreat, which is a style point worth remembering.

HEALTH HINTS.

The Digestive Process.

Let us pause and consider for a moment the miracle of the digestive process, through which every particle of food we eat has to go before being transformed into blood, bone, and muscle.

The changes that take place in the food during this process really begin in the mouth, a fact which indicates very clearly the great importance of thorough mastication. The more thoroughly the food is ground by the teeth and mixed with the saliva, the better it is prepared for the stomach and intestinal digestion.

The absorption of food also begins in the mouth and continues almost throughout the entire alimentary canal, though the process is carried on mostly in the stomach and small intestine. After the entrance of the food into the stomach the digestive fluids gradually permeate it, and, with the aid of the churning motion of the organ, cause changes that slowly bring the contents to a state where the particular elements of nourishment needed by the body at the time are assimilated.

Energy Required

As soon as the work of digestion is well under way, the blood vessels begin to absorb nourishing particles of digested matter through the thin membranes that separate them from the contents of the stomach. By a wise provision of Nature, the delicately constructed organs of digestion have the power of choosing the particular food elements needed by the body, so that only the nourishing portions of the food are actually absorbed. The "waste" is rejected, but has its work to perform as it gives a requisite bulk to the food and facilitates the peristaltic action of the bowels.

The ordinary diet of the average person contains, in addition to the usual nourishment and waste, many elements that by improper preparation are made difficult to digest, and yet others that are stimulating in their influence.
Meat, for instance, contains a considerable amount of impure foreign matter which acts as a stimulant to the functional system.
For this reason the ordinary mixed diet is the cause of much functional strength being wasted;
energy is required to eliminate the foreign and impure matter in meat, and energy is also wasted in digesting unwholesome and improperly cooked foods.

Natural uncooked foods, on the other hand, contain no stimulating elements and no undue waste.
They are not injured and de-vitalised by cooking; they are not made difficult to digest by prolonged and unwholesome preparation.
Moreover, they contain all the nourishment needed in order to maintain the strength of the body with a minimum of waste.—By

THE OUTLOOK

In one sense, the recognition of Manchukuo by Japan to-day marks a new chapter in the history of the troubled East. In another, and more correctly, the event must be regarded as the continuation of a policy towards the completion of which the Japanese have long set themselves. Unhappily, the step must almost inevitably increase the tension between Japan and China. For that reason alone, aside from other and equally important considerations, it must be regretted. There can now be little doubt but that Japan has hastened recognition of the new State in order, as she thinks, to present the League of Nations, when it comes to consider the Manchurian question in the light of the Lytton Report, with a fait accompli. It is very much open to question, however, whether the League, and the Powers outside the League, will be prepared to accept the situation in the light which Japan would desire them to do. Actually, of course, the position has not undergone any real change by Japan's recognition. The mere formality of recognition of a bogus State by its creators does not transform that State into a genuinely independent entity. Japan may think she has accomplished something by recognition; but the outstanding fact is that no other nation has yet recognised Manchukuo—a circumstance which, in view of Japan's obvious self-interest, immensely detracts from the significance of the Japanese action. It remains to be seen whether in the long run Japan's methods will pay.

Japanese recognition of Manchukuo at any time without waiting for like action on the part of other Powers would naturally arouse suspicions; the hasty decision to make the move on the eve of the presentation of the Lytton Report has served to increase these suspicions. If not an actual affront to the League, it certainly smacks of marked impatience to get on "according to programme." Moreover, the Tokyo Government knows full well that its policy in Kelllogg Pact and the Nine-Power Treaty. Yet it is prepared to brush aside all these considerations and proceed with its plans for the domination of the territory. This is, in one respect, the most serious feature of Japan's determination to go her own way, for, as a leading Shanghai journal has remarked, it depreciates the validity of international agreements by making them entirely subordinate to the welfare of one party, without regard to the sanctity of the pledged word. In other words, it rejects the path of patient international negotiation and discussion, which we had hoped had come to be recognised as the right way of adjusting world disputes.

Count Uchida, when he announced Japan's determination to recognise Manchukuo, went so far as to suggest that the policy of which this is the outward sign would eventually lead to a better Sino-Japanese understanding. There is, and never could be, any evidence of such a probability. The opposite effect is, in fact, being produced. And herein there lies a very real danger to the peace of the East. Viewed in this light, the situation is far from reassuring, but it is to be hoped that even at this late hour there will be no fresh outburst of feeling to aggravate an already over-charged situation. The times are pregnant with dangerous possibilities. We can only trust that nothing will be done to create a new upheaval.

Esquivias Wants a Book.

The Mayor of the Spanish town of Esquivias is of the opinion that Great Britain should return to Spain all the first editions of "Don Quixote" which lie in the British Museum. The interest of Esquivias in this matter resides in the fact that this village of New Castile was the birthplace of Cervantes. In the whole of Spain there is only one solitary first edition of Cervantes' great work, and that is hidden in a vault of the National Bank at Madrid, where it can be seen only by the director of the Public Library, the President of the Republic, and Ministers of the Government. Some day the historian may arise who will properly evaluate the importance of this fact in Spanish history. Who knows how many great men have turned their attention to librarianship or politics who would have devoted their abilities to other branches of activity had it been possible in any other way to obtain a glimpse of "Don Quixote" in all the glory of its first edition? Not, indeed, that the word "glory" appears well chosen. For the first Spanish edition was an unimpressive affair. The first translation of "Don Quixote" into any foreign tongue was made into English in 1620, and more translations into English have been made since than into any other language. Spain, on the other hand, was slow to perceive its merits. It was inclined to hold the opinion, afterward sponsored by Ruskin, that "Don Quixote" laughed chivalry away, and made a very noble man ridiculous. But that, of course, was a mistake. What Cervantes ridiculed was not Don Quixote, but the silly romances which Don Quixote, and the Spanish people generally, at that time read. It was these that he scattered to the four corners of the earth with great gusts of scornful laughter. In doing so he performed for Spain a "considerable service—as considerable a service, in fact, as any modern Cervantes would perform for England and America if he ridiculed out of existence the more foolish sentimentalities which so frequently monopolise the cinema.

DAY BY DAY

THE MORBID CURIOSITY OF HUMAN NATURE STILL PERSISTS, IN SPITE OF THE PROGRESS OF CIVILISATION.

It is announced that the marriage of Cyril Edwin Gahagan of Hongkong and Eileen Barbara Medina of Aldershot, England, will take place shortly.

Mr. Charles Bond, for many years Manager of Messrs. Gando, Price and Co., Ltd., has joined the staff of the Wine and Spirits Department of Messrs. Dodwell and Co., Ltd.

The Royal Observatory reports that a moderate anticyclone is central over South Manchuria. The typhoon is crossing North Luzon to the immediate south of Appari, on a N.N.W. track. Local forecast:—N. E. winds, fresh; fair.

Some alarm was caused in the vicinity of the junction of Hollywood Road and Peel Street at 9.40 p.m. yesterday when the Fire Brigade was summoned to an outbreak of fire at No. 70 Hollywood Road. Two engines were immediately despatched and on their arrival it was found that the chimney of the second floor had been set alight. There was no difficulty in putting out the flames.

D. Andrews, the young son of Chief Inspector Andrews, of the Peak Tramways, living at 15, Bowen Road, was the victim of a savage attack by a dog in Bowen Road yesterday. It was stated that the dog was severely bitten about the arms and legs, by a dog which belongs to a neighbour. Mr. Charles Bond, it has been found necessary to admit the dog to hospital for treatment.

Misfortune befel a Chinese passenger 26 years of age, when he attempted to leap on to the ferry pier at Yau-mai before the launch had properly tied up. He failed to clear the intervening space, and to the horror of the other passengers and a large number of people on the pier, was seen to stumble and drop backwards. He was caught between the launch and the pier and crushed. The unfortunate man was in a critical condition from internal injuries when conveyed in an ambulance to the Kwong Wah Hospital. A somewhat similar mishap occurred yesterday in the harbour, when a coolie fell between two junks and was crushed. He, too, was critically injured and was taken to hospital.

WAR IN "GREEN HELL"

By JULIAN DUGUID

THIS recurrence of bloodshed between Bolivia and Paraguay has made me homesick for the jungle. For exactly the same thing happened in 1928, when I was on an Expedition to those benighted lands. Reading the newspaper reports of this "fortin," abandoned and that "fortin" attacked brings home the inner detail like a blow. I can see the sun, and the vultures. Bolivia and Paraguay, as everybody knows, are struggling for a block of territory called the Chaco. It is a vast, inhospitable jungle lying between the north of Argentina and the fringes of the Amazon; bounded on the east by the Rio Paraguay, on the west by the formidable Andes. There is little water in this desolate abode except in the rainy season, when the whole land is waterlocked. Not much of a country, one would presume, on which to waste life. And yet, in a way, one would be wrong.

Bolivia is the Switzerland of South America. Through treaties, misfortunes and ill-considered wars she is in the hopeless position of lacking a sea-board. The Pacific Ports were lost in the Chilean War of 1879. The bandit-President Melgarejo ceded the Paraguay River-Port of Corumba, to Brazil, for a diamond star. And, for a while, Bolivia slept. She was too occupied with Andean tin to recognise the supreme importance of an egress to the sea.

Meanwhile Paraguay extended; quietly, without drums. She invaded, always peacefully, the Chaco land on the west of the great river and gave concessions of Quebracho to foreign tannin manufacturers. By the time Bolivia awoke her property had gone.

Now came the difficulty. Paraguay would not retreat. Bolivia, like a person robbed in his sleep, felt deeply about the loss. She had no port. Always she returns to that. She has no port. If Paraguay would grant her one hundred yards of river frontage with free access to the interior, Bolivia would say no more. Paraguay might keep her foreign concession.

Paraguay, of course, speaks differently in the councils of the world. Bolivia, she says, has ports—two of them—beautifully situated on the river. But she forgets to state that Puerto Suarez is a mud lagoon in the dry season; that Gamba's entrance is guarded by a Brazilian Custom-house. Bolivia, potentially a country which is amazingly rich in agriculture, cannot dispose of her goods.

That is the theory of the case. The practice is more difficult. Firstly, war in South America is utterly foreign to our European conceptions of that tragedy. There is no trench warfare, no big guns; bombs may explode in forest and do little harm beyond lacerating the undergrowth. Distance is everything and water atrociously rare. Cattle cannot feed; there is no grass. Only jungle.

The problem of feeding an army is almost insurmountable. When I went through that country we found it hard enough to feed eight men; and our animals were skeletons before the end. How can an army, as we know the term, exist? The answer is that it cannot. There are no railways, and beef cannot go on the hoof. Quite apart from the insects, which sap the soldiers' vitality, there would be simply not enough food to go round.

I believe the misconception of this war which exists in Europe lies in the Spanish word "fortin." "Fortin" calls to mind a fort, a concrete, gun-emplacement affair with barbed wire, glassis, and embrasures. This is absurd to one who knows the country, but understandable in a stranger. A "fortin" is a palm-thatched erection, just four poles and a roof-tree, without even the dignity of mud walls. These posts are capable of supporting a hundred or so men and are, naturally, very easy to ambush. A corresponding number of attackers creep forward in the night, a volley through the glare of a camp fire, and a "fortin" has been captured. Obviously it is equally difficult to hold.

I remember well in the Christmas week of 1928 the war-lust of the Bolivians in Santa-Cruz. A howling crowd surged round the Cathedral Square and was addressed by impassioned orators from the green balcony of the Club. "Rios de sangre"—rivers of blood—yelled the speakers, and the mob took it up in a sound like the crash of a wave. They were 500 miles from the front and would have to march every yard of the way. We had just come in from that road; we knew the terror of the insects and the leagues without water or food. We listened to the enthusiasm and said: "Poor devils. Will they shoot like this after their march?"

Luckily for them, the rainy season descended a week later and, like Caesar in Gaul, they went into winter quarters.

What will be outcome be? Quien sabe, as they say themselves. The war-fever may drag on from year to year, fierce with the suns of autumn, damped by the mighty rains. Certain enough it is that it can never develop into war as we know it employing like numbers of troops. It will be a guerrilla affair, bitter as the bigger thing and as important to the combatants themselves. Men will die, gloriously, shot in a dash among lianas, from ambush; and Urubú, the vulture, will be their last friend. Other men will lie upon the ground and pray for the hail of bullets to pass over them; but they will be rare. Bolivians and Paraguayans are brave fighters.

Quite frankly, I do not know the outcome. The country I do know—the horrible nature of its thirst and hunger and death from festered wounds. I do not envy the soldiers, when patriotism of the heady kind shall be proved by the pains of the field. But of this I am sure—Bolivia is too vitally concerned to surrender her just claims. Geneva may talk and Washington threaten, yet those places are curiously remote from the Chaco. The hot-blooded people of the South who are shut off from traffic with the sea will never consent to an arrangement which denies them that hundred yards of river-bank.

BE STRONG LIKE US

By Edward Kelly, Strong Man.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. A. D. Spoor has just gone home to England.

We are here to tell you that the laws of gravity got a serious knock-back when he is on the job. Mr. Spoor is the Principal of the Sando Weight-lifting Club, and we saw him hold a seance the other day.

In one case he was 9 1/2 lb. over bogie, and muscles stood out on him like balloon tyres. He busted two or three records, including his own, which was a mean trick on himself.

In cream trousers and no singlets these weight-lifters do those things. They heave on the weights, muscles stroll up and down their back, and after they have nearly strangled themselves, someone announces in a solemn, my-goodness-how-did-he-do-it voice that another record has gone phut.

The sight of all this strenuous effort scared us. We went outside to have a smoke. We said to a chap seven feet by three, who was sitting outside, "Do you also lift weights?"

"Yes," he replied, "I do a bit of it."

We asked him to have a Capstan. He said: he wasn't allowed. We tried to engage him as chucker out of shroffs. He said shroffs were too much and too many for him.

That bucked us up. We went to Mac's and ordered a frankfur with mustard. And would you believe us, we were able, single-handed, with an arm brace, to squeeze the end of

CONCRETE PLAN FOR EUROPE

Seeing that Britain Does Not Get Off

STRESA PROPOSALS

Stresa, Sept. 14.
An interesting stage has been reached at the Danubian Reconstruction Conference.

An outcome of the Lausanne Conference, many people are looking towards the Stresa discussions to pave the way towards general European economic improvement.

The Conference has now adjourned to enable the delegates to submit a concrete scheme to their respective governments.

It provides for the creation of a Central Fund to subsidize Danubian grain exports. The agrarian countries will, in return, negotiate special tariff concessions to the importing countries.

Signor De Micheli, the Italian representative, outlining the scheme, emphasised that all European countries, not merely the countries who import Danubian grain, will be expected to contribute to the Fund.

This provision has reassured the Continental delegates who were afraid that Britain would get off lightly by buying nothing while benefitting by the improved purchasing power of Central Europe.—Reuter.

BURGLARIES ON THE PEAK

SOLDIER ADMITS HIS GUILT

Pte. George Henry Pitcher, of "B" Company, South Wales Borderers, appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning to answer two charges of burglary, and, alternatively, of receiving property which has been stolen recently from Peak residences.

The first charge of burglary related to 362, The Peak, the residence of Mr. D. Bewley, it being alleged that the defendant, after having broken and entered the premises with others not in custody, stole a wristlet watch, two brooches, a cigarette case, an imitation pearl necklace, two bracelets, a metal clasp, two mother-of-pearl bangles, a woollen sweater, 90 cigars of various brands, and a tin of 50 cigarettes, some time on September 7.

In respect of a burglary at the residence of Mr. F. M. Ellis, 455, The Peak, the defendant was charged with feloniously and burglariously breaking and entering the house about 12.25 a.m. on September 12 and stealing a hat ornament, a set of dress studs and cuff links, a cigarette case, two lady's handbags, a silver clock, a pair of gent's black shoes, five pairs of gent's golf hose, 12 handkerchiefs, 11 neckties and seven towels.

The defendant pleaded guilty to both counts of burglary, the receiving charges being withdrawn.

On the application of Inspector Chester Woods, the accused was remanded in military custody for one week.

BRITISH FINANCES IMPROVE

REVENUE UP AND SPENDING DOWN

London, Sept. 14.
British Exchequer returns continue to show an increase of revenue and a decrease of expenditure in comparison with last year. The national revenue for the week ended September 10th totalled £8,399,501, exceeding the expenditure by £300,540.

The figures from 1st April to 10th September show that Customs receipts amounted to £73,127,000 an increase of £15,536,000 on last year. For the same period the excess of ordinary expenditure over revenue was reduced from £91,928,595 to £83,133,251.

A sum of £28,139,920 was expended on repaying of £20,000,000 obtained from France in September, 1931.—British Wireless.

Family troubles are said to have led a Chinese woman, living at 216, Hollywood Road, to attempt suicide in the harbour yesterday. When she threw herself from the seawall at Causeway Bay, she was seen and a prompt rescue was effected by a number of coolies in the vicinity. The would-be suicide was afterwards taken to hospital, but was pronounced dead on arrival.

DOCK COMPRADORE PASSES

DEATH OF MR. LO CHUNG-KUE

Widespread regret will be felt at the death, which occurred at his residence, 97, Caine Road, early this morning, after a short illness, of Mr. Lo Chung-kue, J.P., compradore of the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Co., Ltd.

The deceased gentleman, who was 59 years of age, was educated at Queen's College and joined the Dock Co. 40 years ago as assistant to his father, succeeding him as compradore a few years later. He had, throughout his life, taken a very keen interest in public affairs. He had been twice Member of the Board of Directors of the Tung Wah Hospital, being Chairman of Directors of the Hospital in 1921. He had also served on three occasions on the Committee of Directors of the Po Leung Kue, being Chairman of that Institution in 1927. He was President of the Ying Wah College Boy Scouts and a Member of the Court of the Hongkong University, Chairman Director of the Hongkong & Yau-mai Ferry Co., member of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and of the Chinese Merchants Club, Chairman of the District Dispensary and Vice Chairman of the Compradores Association.

He was appointed Justice of the Peace in 1922, and in 1923 the Chinese Government conferred upon him the Chi Ho Decoration of the 4th Class in recognition of his services in connexion with the typhoon and flood disaster in Swatow and district. Mr. Lo had also been three times a Member of the District Watchmen's Committee.

He is mourned by two daughters and five sons, Mr. Kun-un, B. Sc., formerly Chief Engineer of the Swatow Municipal Government; Mr. Lo Kun-yung, of the Robert Dollar Steamship Co.; Mr. Lo Kun-hang, and Mr. Lo Kun-kan, who share the duties of assistant compradores of the Dock Co., and the youngest son, Lo Kun-ho who is still at school. Mr. Lo's wife predeceased him in 1928.

Mr. Lo's purse was always open in the cause of any charity whether Chinese or foreign, and he will be very sadly missed by a host of friends, both in the foreign and Chinese communities.

SILVER'S UPWARD TURN

SLIGHT ADVANCE IN DOLLAR

The Hongkong dollar rose 1/8th this morning to 1s. 4d., but there is nothing doing on the local market. Shanghai being closed.

In London, silver rose 5/16th ready and a farthing forward, the advance being due to small offerings. China banks and India bought on a steady market. After the official fixing, the market ruled firm, business being done at 1/16th over the rates.

In New York silver prices are unchanged, with the market ir-

Chicago Five Up and Eleven to Play

New York, Sept. 14.
Interest has now definitely swung towards developments in the National League, where Chicago Cubs are still clinging on to their five-games lead thanks largely to the failure of the Pirates.

Chicago were again defeated by the Giants to-day, Ott and Lindstrom hitting home runs in a ten-inning duel. Pittsburgh fell before the Boston Braves, who are staging a revival.

In the American, Washington's fall after a long sequence of victories seems to have affected the side. They lost again to-day to Detroit.

Cleveland blanked Boston, Harder pitching, and scored nine runs, a homer being registered by Burnett. Goslin and Burns hit home runs for St. Louis, but the Browns were badly outbatted by the Athletics, who scored 13 runs from 19 safe hits. Cochrane hit for the circuit.

LOVE TRAGEDY

SUICIDE AFTER VISIT TO ACTRESS'S YACHT

Nico, August 8.
Lieutenant Victor Point, the 30-year-old nephew of M. Berthelot, Secretary-General of the French Foreign Office, and one of France's most brilliant young men, committed suicide because, it is believed, of an unrequited affection for Mlle. Alice Cocen, a well-known actress.

Lieutenant Point, it is stated, hired a boat at Agny and rowed to the yacht Blue Crest, owned by Mlle. Cocen, which was anchored in a bay between Cannes and St. Raphael. When he went on board, angry voices are alleged to have been heard, and shortly afterwards Lieutenant Point returned down the gangway and jumped into his boat, where he shot himself with a revolver and fell into the sea.

It was not until over an hour later that the body was recovered and laid on the beach. Mlle. Cocen was completely overcome and flung herself down and kissed the dead man.

Mlle. Cocen, who is a Rumanian by birth, married a foreign nobleman, whom she subsequently divorced.

AN UNREGISTERED MUI-TSAI.

WIFE OF GOVERNMENT SCHOOL TEACHER PROSECUTED

The wife of a teacher employed in the Yau-mai Government School appeared as defendant before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, when she was summoned by the S.C.A. for keeping an unregistered mui-tsai.

Appearing for the prosecution, Inspector Fraser, of the S.C.A., told his Worship that the mui-tsai was 21 years of age and had been presented by her mother to the defendant's mother at the age of eight for the sum of $90.

On September 2, the girl's mother went to the S.C.A. and reported that she wanted to get her daughter back. She told the S.C.A. that the girl's mistress would not let her go unless she paid over a sum of $170, but she did not have the money. Inquiries made by the S.C.A. confirmed her statement, and in consequence defendant was summoned.

The S.C.A. went on Inspector Fraser, took a serious view of the matter and would like his Worship to impose a heavy fine.

His Worship (to defendant).—You have had the girl for 13 years. Why didn't you register her when you had the opportunity to do so?

Defendant.—I paid her a wage of $3 a month and I thought it was not necessary for me to register her as a mui-tsai.

Inspector Fraser explained to his Worship that there was an agreement two years ago between the girl's mother and the defendant whereby the girl was to work for defendant for five years at a salary of $3 a month. At the end of this period, if the girl still wished to leave, she could do so, but not before.

Asked whether the girl was well-treated by the defendant, Inspector Fraser replied in the affirmative. His Worship said under the circumstances, he would not take a serious view of the case, and imposed a fine of $100.

BAROMETER FALLS.

DEMOCRATIC VICTORY IN STATE OF MAINE

Portland, Maine, Sept. 14.
The Democrat "wets" defeated the Republican "drys" for the first time in 18 years in the selection for the Governorship of the Barometer State.

The returns from a few constituencies are still awaited but they are regarded as having a very negligible effect on the issue.

Mr. Brunn, the Democratic candidate, came out on top for the Governorship by a small but safe majority, while two out of three congressional districts declared for the Democrats.

Mr. Hoover has sent a message to the disappointed Republicans insisting that the result "imposes a need for renewed and stronger efforts."—Reuter.

DRAMATIC INCIDENT RECALLED

Neutral Umpires Necessary

I doubt if there is any game in the world so difficult to umpire as lawn tennis. Particularly is it difficult to play through a long and important match without some bad decisions.

Whether it be difficult or not, there is no denying that in every big contest mistakes of such a flagrant character have been made that the players have almost been demoralised.

Lawn tennis players have often been accused of bad sportsmanship because, so it is said, they dispute the umpire's decisions. But do they? Remember that in cricket only one decision is needed for a batsman to retire. A batsman cannot, if given out, dispute the umpire. I do not think for one moment that every batsman is such an angel that he believes the umpire is always right. Indeed, I know of Test match batsmen who, after they have reached the pavilion, have resented the decisions that sent them there.

GOOD SPORTSMEN.

In lawn tennis decisions have to be given in every game, and in a match lasts for two or three hours many decisions have been given throughout the match. If a player has what he considers several bad decisions he cannot retire to the pavilion to let off steam, but he has to remain and finish the match, and may possibly have more bad decisions.

In spite of that I remember few players in recent years who have taken decisions badly.

Take, for example, the recent Davis Cup match, America v. France, when J. Borotra played W. Allison in that crucial rubber on which victory for France depended. Borotra had made a glorious recovery from two sets down to two sets all, and in the fifth set everybody—and I do not exclude the linesmen—became frantic with excitement.

Every point was cheered, and when the men crossed over at each odd game they were greeted again with rousing cheers. The air became electric when Borotra saved the ninth game (Allison led by 5-3 and 40-15 on his service), and when he reached forty love for three points for five all in the next game the excitement was indescribable. Borotra missed the easiest of smashes. Had he won, this story would not have been written, for the point in question would never have arisen. Then came the shoe incident, and Borotra lost the next two points, playing with one foot bare on the court.

Imagine Allison receiving hostile attention from the crowd as if he were responsible for Borotra playing on after he had burst his shoe! All these incidents were not conducive to calmness of the players or the crowd. Anyhow, at deuce, Borotra changed his shoes and lost the next point afterwards, which made Allison for the third time within a point of the match. Remember, he had been foiled by brilliant play of Borotra on the first two occasions!

A DRAMATIC MOMENT.

Everybody was hushed. Indeed, you could almost feel the silence. The French crowd looked at Borotra and I am sure must have prayed that he would serve an ace. He missed his first service and paused. That pause was to conquer his own anxiety. Then he feebly delivered his second. "It must be a double fault," I said to myself as I saw the ball leave his racquet and travel in a high trajectory.

The ball lodged on the court; Allison returned it, but not with the intention of making a point, but carelessly jubilant because he believed, like ninety per cent. of the huge crowd, that it was a double fault and he had won the match. But there was silence from the linesman and the score was brought back to deuce and Borotra was saved.

"What about Allison? He looked aghast at the umpire—and then, with a shrug, he played on and lost. Was that bad sportsmanship? I thought he showed wonderful self-control.

No doubt the linesman was excited and forgot to follow the ball with the intention of giving a decision. I do not believe that because he was a Frenchman he gave Borotra the point. But I am sure the time is ripe when lawn tennis should take a few lessons from the game of cricket.

NEWMAN AS AN UMPIRE

EX-HANTS BOWLER IN NEW ROLE

Chatting with Jack Newman during my visit to Hastings, I asked the old Hampshire cricketer how he liked his new duties as an umpire. In reply he said, "I am gradually settling down, but I often feel the urge of bowling especially when the day is warm and sunny."

"Upon the occasion of a recent match I went so far as to put an old ball in my pocket. I wanted to handle it unobserved and recall the old days."

Newman has not yet done with active cricket. In a few weeks' time he will resume a coaching and management in South Africa and thereby hangs a tale concerning one of his winter trips out of England.

Some years ago Newman broke one of his little fingers and as a result he wore for protective purposes a little black finger-stall. But let Newman continue the story:

"On going out to fulfil another coaching engagement I took the same precaution as in England, and when playing in one of the local matches the umpire, much to my astonishment, no-balled me three times in succession.

"Confident that I had not gone over the crease I said to the umpire, 'What's the matter?'

"In reply he said gravely: 'We have received instructions to take careful note of bowlers and I notice that you are wearing a finger-stall to help you spin the ball.'

"To me," continued Newman, "the suggestion appeared so prote-sque that I was inclined at first to make fun of it, but the umpire was in dead earnest in spite of my explanations. I learned afterwards that the umpires had observed a number of duplicate finger-stalls which I carried about with me and that the word had gone forth to watch me."

"People who know anything about spin bowling are perfectly well aware that any extraneous methods to aid spin must have a rough surface, whereas, as you see, my innocent finger-stall is quite smooth and shiny."

"But in order to convince the watchers, I bowled a few hours later at the nets without my finger-stall and by great good luck I was unusually successful upon that occasion in making the ball break."

Eventually the Umpires' Association sent Newman a graceful apology.—Frank Throgood.

WHY THEY FAILED

BRITISH WOMEN TENNIS STARS EXPLAIN

Hamburg, Aug. 12.
To-day I spoke to the four English women lawn tennis players who, although they were expected to carry all before them, met with little success in the German championships here.

Although their form was disappointing there is little reason to suppose that our women players are falling behind the girls of other countries.

I learned to-day that Miss Stammers, who was defeated by Fraulein Payot, of Switzerland, by 6-3, 6-4, took the courts strongly against the advice of her doctors, while Miss Betty Nuthall, who was defeated by Fraulein Schaumburg, was clearly at nothing like her best. Even star players must have off-days.

Mrs. Whittingstall experienced more difficulty than most of the others in becoming accustomed to the Continental type of ball in use here, to which must be added the handicap of a soft court, which troubled all the English representatives.

NEW SPEED RECORD

LAND PLANE DOES 309 M.P.H.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 8.
Major Doolittle, the famous American aviator, who on September established a new world record for a land plane of 302.16 miles an hour, bettered this mark in the national air races here to-day. Covering a three-kilometre course four times at an average speed of 296.287 miles an hour, he completed one lap at a speed of 309.04 miles an hour.

WHIRLWIND CRICKET

VICTORY SNATCHED WITH LAST BALL

Surrey served up twenty minutes of REALLY brighter cricket at the Oval, during which time they beat both Middlesex and the clock.

At ten minutes to six spectators were leaving the ground, satisfied that the game would be drawn. It was then that the fun began.

Hendren, batting brilliantly for Middlesex, looked like playing out time when he attempted what seemed to be a safe run. Whiffled, fielding as substitute for Hobbs, who had hurt his knee, had other ideas.

From where he retrieved the ball at deep square leg the wicket was at such an angle that he could see only one stump but with a long throw he knocked this stump down. Hendren was out, and Surrey suddenly found that they had a chance to win.

They set out to do this. Their batsmen galloped to the wickets and smashed at the bowling. This is the time-table of their great effort:

- 610.—Innings started: 57 runs wanted.
- 614.—F. R. Brown out: 49 wanted.
- 616.—P. G. H. Fender out: 48 wanted.
- 626.—Shepherd out: 12 wanted.
- 627.—S. A. Block out: 11 wanted.
- 627½.—D. R. Jardine in: Ratcliffe scored a single.
- 630.—Jardine scores a 4 off the last ball of the match and Surrey won by six wickets.

That was not all the excitement, however. In their over-earnestness the Middlesex fielders twice missed Shepherd before he was finally run out trying to steal an extra run, and Jardine was also missed off the first ball he received.

MOTOR CYCLE TRIAL

ALL NIGHT EVENT BEING STAGED

ENTRY FORMS READY

Motor cycle enthusiasts will have plenty of opportunity of testing the reliability of their machines and their own ability in handling them on October 8-9, when an all-night reliability trial is being held in Kowloon.

Starting at midnight on the 8th, competitors will be asked to ride throughout the early hours of the morning over a sporting course which promises to provide plenty of fun.

Intending competitors are reminded that entry forms for the event can now be obtained from Mr. H. G. Williams, c/o of Messrs. Dodwell & Co., Ltd. (Wine and Spirit Dept.), Queen's Building. Particulars as to the direction and nature of the course will be published later.

VICTIM OF A TRICK.

PUISNE JUDGE PENALISES PLAINTIFF

"I think you are the victim of a trick," the Puisse Judge (Mr. Justice Wood) told Mr. Prentiss who was representing the Nathan Ming Tak Restaurant Co. Ltd. in an action brought against it by the On Sang Loong Stall yesterday.

The plaintiff claimed $819.64 for goods sold and delivered. The defence was that $200 had been paid to the plaintiffs on condition that the case would be adjourned sine die. The plaintiffs in reply, denied that any such promise had been given by a responsible member of the company.

Justice Wood gave judgment for the plaintiffs for the full amount of the claim but ordered that the defendants should pay only half of the plaintiff's costs.

TRANSLATOR GAOLED.

BORROWED CAMERA TO TAKE PHOTOS ON PEAK

Described as a translator of the Hongkong Daily Press, Luk Hing-nam was charged before Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon with fraudulently obtaining a camera from the Empress Photographers, Queen's Road in August 1931.

Detective Sergeant F. W. Fowle informed his Worship that the defendant was well-known to the complainant, with whom he had worked previously in a photographic shop in Queen's Road which had since gone bankrupt. On August 28, 1931, he asked for the loan of a camera as he wished to take photos for a European on the Peak. The camera was given to the defendant, and a small boy from the shop was sent to assist.

After alighting from the tram at the Peak Hotel the defendant instructed the small boy to return to the shop for more films. The boy obtained the films, but when he got to the Peak Hotel again he found the defendant missing. The camera was never returned to the complainant.

The defendant was subsequently arrested in Ice House Street. On him was found a pawn ticket relating to a lens which he had borrowed from the complainant.

The defendant remarked that he had borrowed the camera and had taken it to Shanghai where he had left it. He remained in the North for a short time and returned to Hongkong. He was a translator on the Hongkong Daily Press and had been employed there for the past seven months.

His Worship pointed out that although he had been in Hongkong for seven months he had not told the complainant that the camera had been left in Shanghai.

Sentence of two months' hard labour was imposed.

VISITORS CONFIDENT THAT AUSTRALIA WILL RECOVER

Among the arrivals from Australia by the A. O. liner Taiping, which is now in port, are Dr. A. V. Davenport, prominent Melbourne practitioner, who is accompanied by his daughter, Miss D. A. Davenport, and Mrs. and Mrs. F. F. Leslie. Mr. Leslie is a prominent marine aviator and a first class assessor for insurance companies in Australia.

In an interview yesterday, Dr. Davenport said that a feeling of much greater confidence now ruled in Australia. The fact that Commonwealth bonds are selling at par was a true reflection of public confidence in the present Administration, and the speaker expressed the opinion that Australia would be the first part of the Empire to recover from the present world-wide depression.

"The influence of the Trades Hall for co-operation has been felt in Australia for a long time," said Dr. Davenport, "but, happily, its power is rapidly waning. Over fifty Communists have been deported from Australia, back to Russia, since the Lyons Ministry assumed power, and the influence of Lang, the ex-premier of N.S.W., is greatly diminished."

"I do not think there is one part of the British Empire where loyalty is more manifest than in Australia. We have a big, inarticulate population which says nothing, but thinks a lot, and Australia may be relied upon when the time comes. The tone of optimism which pervades the country now is a true reflection of the feeling of the Australian people."

Misleading News.
"It is a pity that the people responsible in Australia for broadcasting press reports could not use a little judgment. Australia is undoubtedly misrepresented in the overseas press. Nothing but the bad things, such as strikes, droughts and sensationalisms, are reported, while nothing is said about the wonderful sacrifice that has been made by the Australian people, nor about their magnificent spirit in voluntarily converting ninety-nine per cent of the internal loans from six to four per cent. Even the magnificent effort by the English people in the recent conversion at Home fell far short of Australia's effort."

"For a long time Australia was like the person who despairingly looked down the well, into the black and oily depths. Now she is steadily climbing upwards, with eyes steadfastly fixed on the sunshine above."

Mr. F. F. Leslie, who is making the round trip to the East with Dr. Davenport, considers that he has seen nothing more beautiful than Hong-kong by night.

"I have travelled fairly extensively," he said, "but have yet to see something that will touch this."

Australian Shipping, said Mr. Leslie, in answer to a question, was

SACRED HEART COLLEGE TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

The Sacred Heart English College will hold the celebration of the 10th. anniversary of the opening of the College next Saturday, at the school compound (Nathan Road, Yaumatei) at 8 p.m.

Smith for his scholarship and the following gentlemen and firms for handsome donations and prizes.—The British American Tobacco Co., Sir Shouson Chow, Hon. Mr. W.E.L. Shenton, Mr. F. H. Mody, Messrs. still suffering from the general world wide depression, and many ships were still laid up. The Australian tariff, although necessary, had blocked a lot of imports into the Commonwealth, and did not offer a quid pro quo to other countries. The speaker made many eulogistic references to the Australian Oriental line, which ran a three-weekly service between Australia and Hongkong, and spoke especially of the steamer Taiping, which, incidentally, was constructed in Hong-kong.

"I think Australian trade with the East is bound to increase in the near future," said Mr. Leslie. "The Commonwealth Attorney General, Mr. J. G. Latham, quite recently spoke of the tremendous potentialities of the East, and Australia is undoubtedly right at the doorway. Our tariffs are unfortunately preventing many goods from going into the holds of ships returning to Australia, but just now it is a case of strict necessity that our trade figures be balanced."

"Taxation in Australia has almost reached saturation point, and the Victorian Government are going to reduce the exemption figure to a nominal amount. There are 140,000 tax-payers in Victoria now, and the new exemptions will increase the numbers to half a million. Victoria must get more taxes to meet its obligations, and the only logical thing is to let everyone pay."

TAILOR DISCHARGED.

ACCUSED OF RECEIVING STOLEN CLOTH

At the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, before Mr. Wynne-Jones, Chung Chi-foon of No. 12, Victoria Street, tailor, accused of having received a roll of cloth the property of the Sun Company Ltd. knowing the same to have been stolen, was discharged by the Magistrate.

Prosecuting, Detective Sergeant Moran said that cloth had been stolen from the Sun Company, from time to time, but there might be difficulty in identifying the stolen property in this case. The defendant had admitted that the cloth was bought by him from one Lo Kee, an employee of the Sun Company, who is now in prison.

For the defendant Mr. Peter Sin pointed out that even if the prosecution could prove that the property found on the prisoner was in fact stolen, they had yet to satisfy the Court that the defendant had guilty knowledge. Continuing, Mr. Sin said that his client would give an explanation as to how he came to possess the property, and if that explanation was one that might reasonably be true, though His Worship may not be convinced that it was true, the prisoner was entitled to an acquittal as the law was definite on that point.

His Worship remarked that he was satisfied that the account given was a reasonable one, and accordingly discharged the defendant as stated, the cloth being handed back to him.

GRIM STORY OF TRAIN DISASTER TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE FOREIGN LEGION CATASTROPHE

120 KILLED: 150 INJURED

Paris, Sept. 15.

Grim details now forthcoming filling in the picture of the terrible French troop train disaster in Algiers reveal a catastrophe of a far greater magnitude than first reports gave reason to believe.

Death roll estimates have shot up from 50 to 120, and the seriously injured are now stated to number 150 instead of 80.

The two hundred and seventy Foreign Legion casualties mentioned do not include those who escaped with hurts, though they compose more than half the soldiers aboard the ill-fated train.

One of the two officers commanding the detachment is among those reported killed.

NEAR HEADQUARTERS.

The train was carrying, it is understood, 510 officers, N.C.O.'s and men of the Foreign Legion in the region of Tlemcen, near the headquarters of the Legion, when it ran off the line and crashed into a ravine.

The disaster is believed to have been due to a subsidence of the permanent way. Carriages were splintered and telescoped and few aboard the train escaped without injury, minor or serious.

TORRENTIAL RAINS.

It is believed that torrential rains in the past two or three days caused the track to collapse, precipitating the train into the ravine.

The wreckage of thirty-one coaches now lies in a heap, the coaches having fallen one on top of the other, splintering as they crashed. The scene, in the ravine, is one of almost indescribable chaos and a terrible feature of the affair is that assistance is difficult to obtain.

RELIEF DIFFICULTIES.

Relief parties have been sent from a neighbouring village and the railway company's representatives are also on the spot, but as the disaster occurred in an inaccessible part of the desert, means of communication are limited and effective assistance is difficult to organise.—Reuter.

ANXIETY FOR FLIERS FAIL TO REACH ROME

SARDINIA SIGHTING REPORT MYSTERY

JOY TURNS TO FEAR

Rome, Sept. 15.

In place of the enthusiasm which greeted the report of the sighting of the Trans-Atlantic plane, American Nurse, over Sardinia, there has developed a feeling of grave anxiety.

Expectations of the arrival of the machine with its three occupants on completion of a nonstop flight from New York were disappointed.

The craft is now many hours overdue and there is no information whatsoever regarding its whereabouts.

It is now suggested that the report that the machine was sighted last night at 9 p.m. over Sardinia was due to mistaken identity, unless it is that the American Nurse failed at the last lap and has been forced down in the Tyrrhenian Sea.

UNCERTAINTY.

The Sardinia report said that the machine was flying very low to avoid heavy clouds, but no one can be sure whether it was really the American Nurse or not.

The plane left New York early on Tuesday, piloted by Dr. William Ullrich and Dr. Leon Piquini, while Miss Edna Newcomer, a nurse-parachutist, was a passenger.—Reuter.

IDENTIC NOTES ON TOKYO RECOGNITION ACT

SEEKING CONFERENCE ON MANCHURIA

Changchun, Sept. 15.
THE CEREMONY OF FORMAL RECOGNITION OF THE MANCHUKUO GOVERNMENT BY JAPAN WAS COMPLETED AT 9.10 THIS MORNING.—Reuter.

Simultaneously with the Japanese official announcement of Tokyo's formal recognition of Manchukuo, the Chinese Government opened a counter-attack in the form of Notes of protest to London, Paris, Washington, Rome and Geneva, charging Japan with violating China's territorial and administrative sovereignty and demanding international action.

The other signatories to the Nine-Power Treaty are requested to call a conference to "take up this urgent issue".

Nanking has also protested to Tokyo.—Reuter.

Everywhere in China, notably in Shanghai and Nanking, the announcement is expected to cause trouble, though elaborate precautions have been taken to prevent disorders. Reuter's reports early this morning indicated that the populace was keyed up to a high pitch of excitement.

The Japanese have taken the precaution of sending strong naval forces to Shanghai, Nanking and Hankow.

MARTIAL LAW AT NANKING

All Demonstrations Prohibited

Nanking, Sept. 15.
Martial law was declared at Hsiakwan, the waterfront suburb of Nanking, last night.

All traffic was brought to a halt some distance from the O.S.K. Wharf and was not allowed to proceed further.

Extra patrols have been placed on the streets throughout the capital, the watchfulness being particularly notable in the foreign section of the capital.

All demonstrations have been prohibited.—Reuter.

Excitement among the Chinese populace in Shanghai and Nanking is intensifying as the hour of Japan's recognition of the Manchukuo Government approaches.

The people are keyed up to fever pitch and trouble is expected though what form it will take cannot be foreseen. Every possible precaution is being taken both by the Chinese and Japanese.

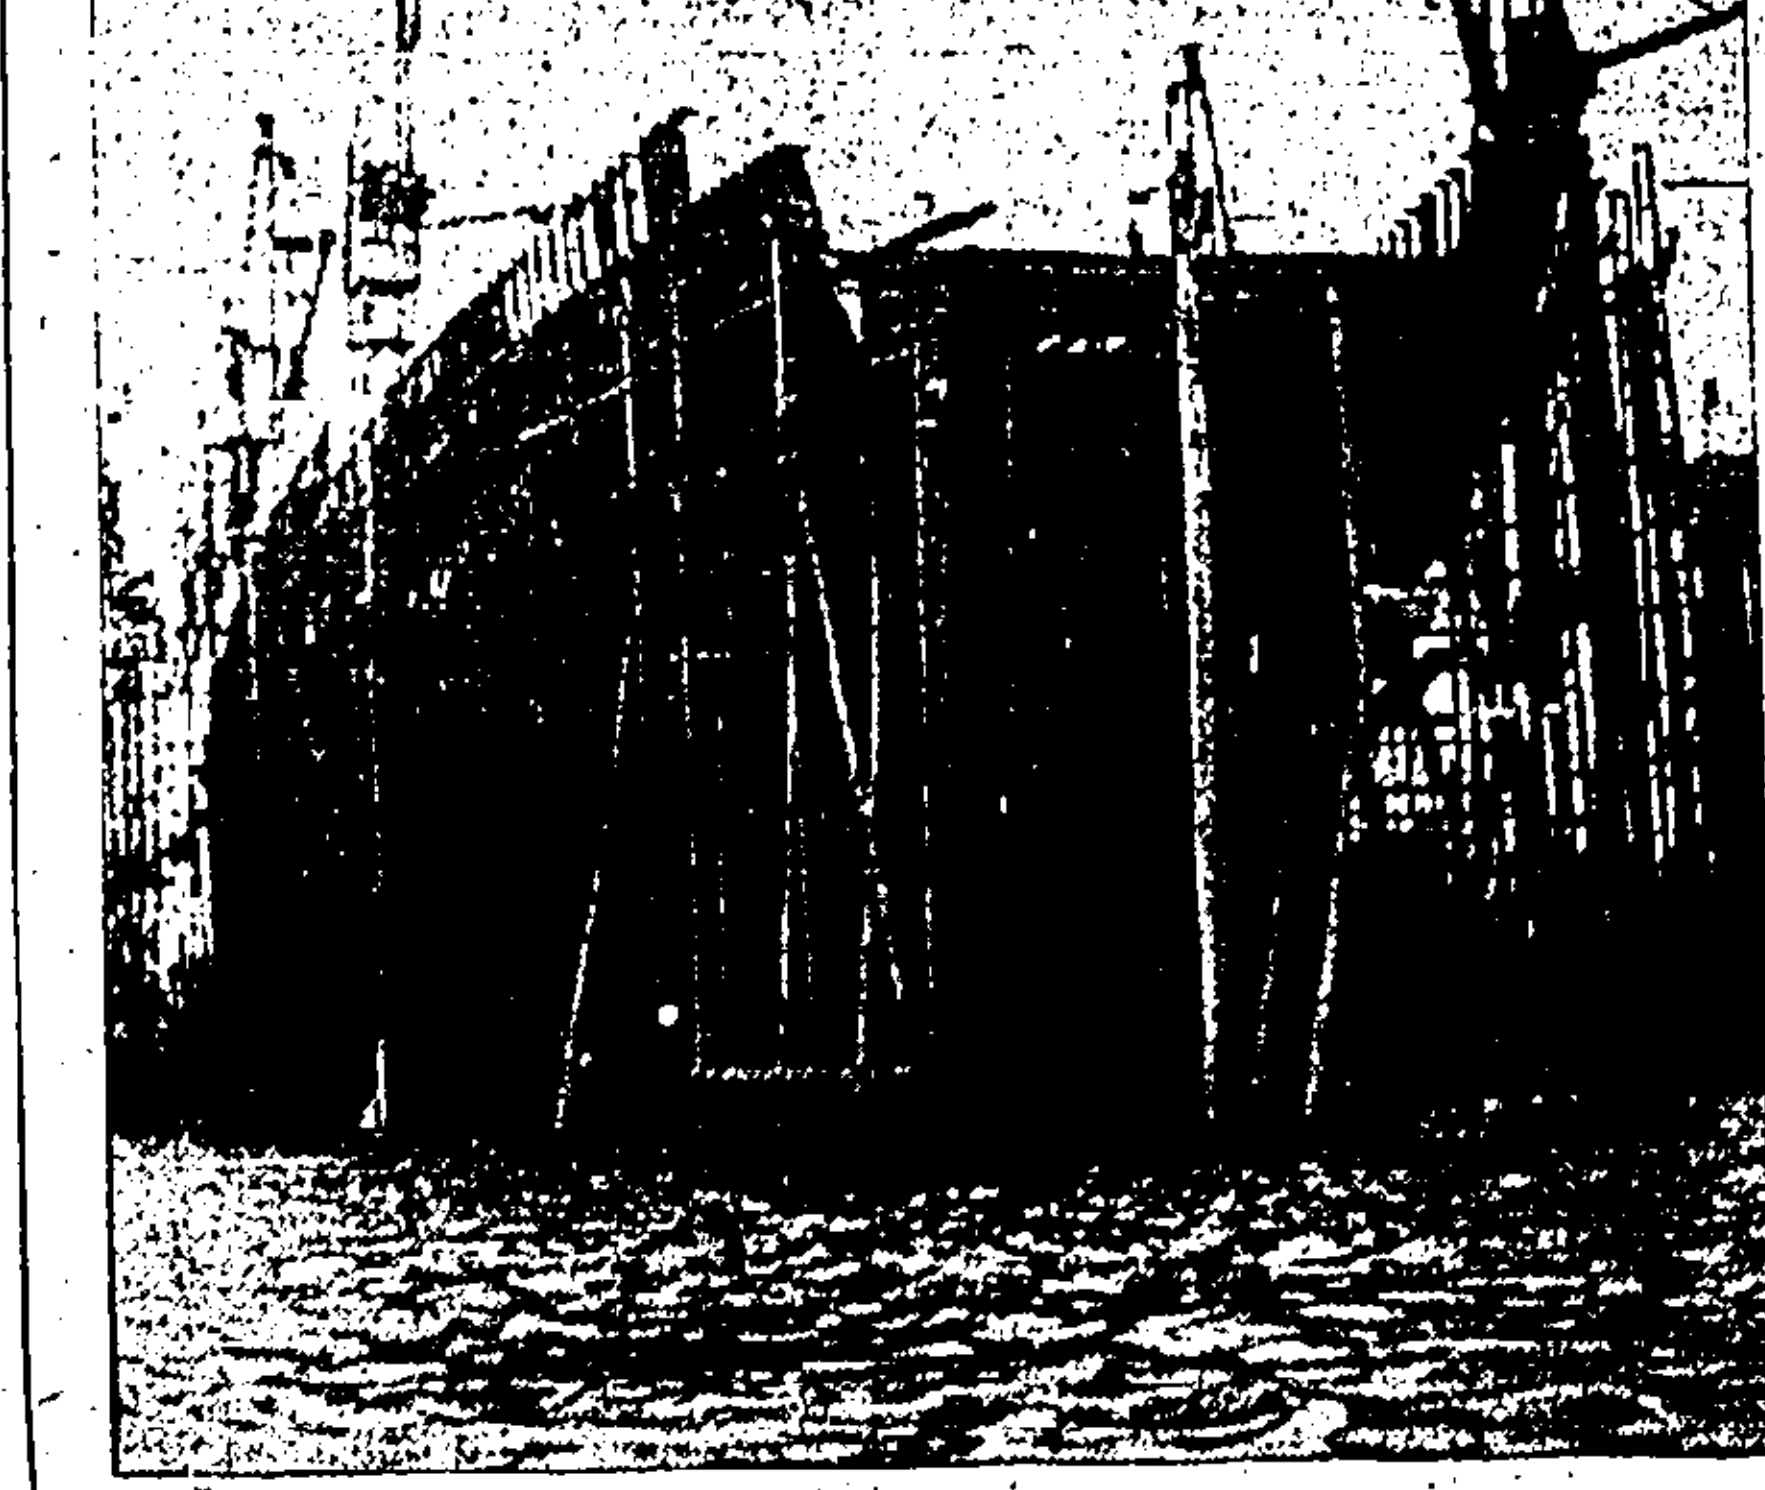

The Japanese have strong naval forces at Shanghai, Nanking and Hankow.—Reuter.

London, Sept. 14.
It is understood that conversations regarding a possible resumption of work on the new 73,000-ton Cunard liner at Clydebank, took place yesterday and to-day between Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, and Sir Thomas Royden, a Director of the Cunard Company, at the home of the latter, Tillymore House, Aberdeenshire.

POLICE LAUNCH RAMMED

SUNK BY FERRY AT YAUMATI

2 A M MISHAP

An alarming experience befel Sergeant Feeley and other occupants of No. 5 police launch about 2 o'clock this morning, when the craft was rammed and sunk by the Yaumati Ferry launch, Man Sang, just inside the Yaumati typhoon shelter.

The incident occurred on the return of the Man Sang from Hongkong, when, just as she was entering the Yaumati breakwater, she struck the police launch immediately. It began to sink her immediately.

Sergeant Feeley was the only European officer on board at the time, being in charge, and he with the crew escaped with nothing worse than a ducking. All were in the water for some time before being picked up by the Man Sang.

After the collision, the police launch rapidly settled and this morning only her funnel was visible above the water. The damage to the Man Sang was practically negligible.

LATE NEWS. BRITAIN TAKING INITIATIVE

GERMANY'S EQUALITY DEMAND

MEETINGS NEXT WEEK

(Telegraph Special.)

London, Sept. 15.

The situation arising from Germany's claim to equality in armaments and the French rejection of the demand, is receiving the closest attention of Sir John Simon.

No statement regarding Britain's position in the controversy is likely to be made until the weekend, however.

The present delay is adding strength to the idea that Britain is drawing up meditative proposals, though what form they will take is not known.

International conversations regarding Germany's claim were carried a stage further yesterday when the Japanese Ambassador conferred at some considerable length with Mr. Herriot. It is understood that Mr. Nagatani informed Mr. Herriot that the Emperor of Japan had approved the recognition of Manchukuo.—Reuter.

MOVE FORECAST.

London, Later.

A new move by Britain regarding the German re-armament claim is forecast in the Daily Express this morning, the journal suggesting that it will probably take the form of a proposal that the Disarmament Conference Committee meetings should be postponed after the initial meeting on September 21, the adjournment to be followed by consultation between the Powers principally interested.

The initiative in this move is understood to be the Prime Minister's.

IN PRINCIPLE BUT NOT IN FACT.

The Daily Express further understands that the policy now being formulated by the British Government consists mainly in granting Germany equality of military status in principle to be accompanied by an agreement whereby Germany will contract not to re-arm in fact, and the conclusion of a Disarmament Convention whereby the other Powers would engage to disarm further than they have yet done.—Reuter.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

The following is an especially well played no trump hand. It was played by Joseph D. McDiarmid, one of Cincinnati's leading tournament players, and brings out an important point regarding business doubles.

At auction, we often heard the expression, "It was a free double," but there are no free doubles at contract. It is very expensive to double unless you are positive of setting the declarer at least two tricks, as he may respond with a redouble which may prove very costly.

The Bidding.

South passed and West passed. Mr. McDiarmid, who was sitting in the North, opened with one spade. Remember that the requirements for a third hand bid under the one over one system are a great deal less than those required for either first or second hand bidding. East made an informative double. South bid two clubs, West passed, and Mr. McDiarmid bid two diamonds. East passed and South went to three clubs. North then went to three no trump, which East doubled.

The Play.

The opening lead by East was the five of diamonds. West went right up with the king and Mr. McDiarmid, the declarer, won the trick with the ace and then led the ten of clubs. East made a nice play and refused to cover the ten as there were only three missing clubs—if the declarer held two clubs, Mr. McDiarmid was going to be able to finesse through East anyway, while if that was a singleton, the declarer might make the mistake of not going up with the queen in dummy.

However, Mr. McDiarmid refused to be trapped and played the queen from dummy which held the trick. He then led the ace of clubs from dummy and there is where the declarer made a very fine play—the double practically marked for him the two missing aces, therefore he did not throw a small spade, but discarded the queen of spades.

He then led a small club from dummy and discarded a small heart from his own hand. East won the trick with the king and cashed his queen of diamonds, a heart being discarded from dummy. East continued with the ten of diamonds, dummy discarded another heart and Mr. McDiarmid, the declarer, won the trick with the jack and returned the nine of diamonds, discarding the jack of hearts from dummy.

You will notice that he had retained the jack and six of spades in dummy. He now led a small spade and you can see that East is helpless. If he goes in with the ace the jack of spades will be an entry for the declarer, while if he refuses to win this trick with the ace, he will only make one more trick. His safe play is to win with the ace of spades and then cash his ace of hearts.

The anti-climax of the bonus army's long struggle was reached in this scene at Ideal Park, Johnston, when the remnants of the B.E.F. agreed to disperse after an appeal by Mayor McCloskey. Although many dissenters seemed determined to cling to their camp, the majority of the vets started for home after McCloskey told them that W. W. LEAP YEAR BRIDE

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Cherry Dixon, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, married Dan Phillips, newspaper reporter, after a quarrel with her parents. It is a Leap Year marriage and Cherry does the proposing.

She and Dan move into a cheap apartment and Cherry's first struggle with housework is discouraging. Dixie Shannon, movie critic of the News, is friendly. Cherry meets handsome Mac Watson, also of the News, who tries to make love to her. After several weeks Cherry's mother becomes seriously ill. The girl goes home and there is a reconciliation with her parents. Dixie will not allow her to accept financial aid from them however. Mr. and Mrs. Dixon depart, seeking another climate to improve the mother's health.

Brenda Wall, magazine writer, comes to Wellington and Dan meets her. She asks him to collaborate in writing a play. Dan begins to spend most of his evenings at Mac Wall's apartment. Dixie tries to warn Cherry that there is gossip about Brenda and Dan but Cherry will not listen.

Dan asks Cherry about a short story he wrote weeks before. She says it was destroyed, deliberately telling an untruth.

CHAPTER XL

Cherry clipped the pie into the oven, closed the door and straightened with a sigh. Her shoulders and arms ached. She knew she should not have tried to bake on cleaning day but the apples would have spoiled if she had not used them. Apple pie was Dan's favorite dessert too.

She looked at the clock and saw that it was almost 6. Time to set the table.

Cherry was wearing her oldest house dress. It was torn and smeared with dust but she did not think of that. Her hair was hidden beneath a towel pinned on for a dust cap and there were black smudges on her cheeks. From floor to ceiling the apartment was in epic and epic order but Cherry herself had never been less presentable. She had given the apartment a thorough cleaning, shaken the rugs, swept and dusted and washed the windows. It had all taken longer than she had expected.

Cherry opened the gaiter table and spread out the cloth. Usually she took pains to make the table attractive but tonight dishes and silver went on carelessly.

She was back in the kitchen stirring the stew made from last night's beef roast when Dan's key sounded in the lock. Cherry did not turn but called, "That you, Dan?"

"Way. 'Great Scott!' Dan exclaimed, 'what have you been doing to yourself?'

Cherry looked up in surprise. "Why—I—oh, I guess I forgot to take the towel off my head. I've been cleaning house. Everything's done except the bathroom window. Will you wash it for me, Dan, while I finish getting dinner on the table?"

The young man frowned. "Can't it wait until to-morrow?"

"I promised myself I'd have this work done to-night. If you don't want to do it say so and I'll finish it after a while. I didn't think you'd mind doing that little bit. I've scrubbed and slaved until I can hardly—"

It was unusual for Cherry to complain but to-night she was really tired. She had tried to crowd too much work into a single day and every muscle in her body seemed to protest.

"Oh—all right!" Dan grumbled. "I'll do it."

He rolled up his sleeves and Cherry pinned an apron about him. She gave him the cleaning powder, a basin of water and clean dusters. Dan disappeared and Cherry went on with preparations for the meal.

She mixed the salad and poured the stew into a serving bowl. Dan didn't like stew but to-night he would have to eat it. Everything was ready except the pie. Cherry glanced into the oven, turned the flame higher.

"Haven't you finished yet, Dan?" she asked.

He was rubbing the window pane laboriously. Cherry stepped forward. "Up there," she pointed. "There's a streak that isn't clean."

Dan's exclamation was smothered. "Why don't you hire someone to come in and do this for you?" he demanded. "Don't you think I've done a day's work at the office?"

"I guess you know why I don't hire anyone to help me! It's because I haven't money to pay them."

"And that's because I don't make enough! Is that it? You might as well say it. That's what me of such things? Do I ever complain about money? Don't I do everything in the world to save? I've worked all day—"

"Worked? What do you think I've been doing? If you really had to do a day's work once in a while maybe you'd know how it feels to be tired!"

Tears smarted in Cherry's eyes but she was determined Dan should not see them. She could not trust herself to speak.

They had never quarrelled so before. There was nothing over which they were disagreeing now. Both were tired and both were suffering from "nerves." One word from either of them just then could have set everything right but neither of them spoke that word.

Dan unrolled the window pane and stepped back. "There," he said grudgingly. "Does that suit you?"

The girl did not reply. The odor of something burning had reached her nostrils.

DREAM OF DESTINY

her nostrils. The pie in the oven! Cherry ran to the kitchen and pulled the oven door open. Thick smoke rolled out. Cherry reached for a holder but found none. She grabbed the nearest object—a tea towel—and lifted out the pie.

The hot, sugary liquid bubbled over the edge of the crust and burned her hand. Cherry cried out in pain. She dropped the pie on the shelf and held her hand under running water from the tap.

The pie was ruined. The blaze beneath the oven must have been higher than she had thought. The top crust, instead of being a golden flaky yellow, was charred and black. The odor of burning apple juice was offensive.

Dan stood in the doorway, surveying the scene. "Well," he said, "I guess we don't have pie for dinner." He moved to the windows and raised them.

Cold air swept into the room. It chilled the food serving dishes. Cherry and Dan shivered.

going ahead with the meal until the smoke was gone. In five minutes the atmosphere cleared.

Cherry disappeared into the dressing room and returned with tell-tale red lines about her eyes. She and Dan sat down at the table and the meal began. Cherry, if she had been her own vivacious self, would have looked attractive in spite of her soiled, torn frock. She could have laughed and Dan would not have noticed the grimy costume. She did not look attractive now. Tears had smudged the black marks on her face. Her lips pressed in a hard, tight line to keep from trembling.

Dan spoke once or twice as though trying to make overtures at friendliness but they were not accepted. Cherry's answers were polite. Too polite. There was a long interval of silence in which the girl was aware that the meal was hopeless. The stew was cold and the salad contained too much salt. She had counted on the pie to retrieve a meal of left-overs. Cherry was so miserable she would not have noticed what she was eating if had not been for Dan.

Why didn't he tell her he was sorry for those hateful things he had said? Why didn't he cover her hand with his own and say "Cherry, I was a beast but it was because I've had a hard day. Forgive me, darling!" Why didn't he take her in his arms and ask her to forget those cruel words?

Dan Phillips did none of these things. He ate little of the food. The meal was over almost as soon as it had begun. While Cherry gathered up the dishes Dan sat hunched behind his newspaper, and raised them.

The girl had almost decided she could stand the silence no longer, that she must speak when Dan

"I'm going out for a while," he said shortly.

Cherry forgot her pose. "But, Dan," she said, "I thought we might go somewhere together this evening. See a movie maybe. I thought—"

"I'm sorry," Dan interrupted. "I've made other plans."

Anger she could not control flashed in the girl's voice. "It's strange," she said, "but whenever there's anything I want to do you always have other plans! We never go out together any more. You haven't taken me anywhere for a week! All I do is stay home and—"

"I know!" Dan assured her bitterly. "All you do is stay home and slave. I can recite the rest of it for you backwards. It comes from having a worthless, good-for-nothing husband. I'm very sorry for you, but in keeping with my role as the worthless husband I'll have to remind you that I've made other plans for the evening."

CUBS & PIRATES BOTH DEFEATED

Chicago Five Up and Eleven to Play

Interest has now definitely swung towards developments in the National League, where Chicago Cubs are still clinging to their five-games lead thanks largely to the failure of the Pirates.

Chicago were again defeated by the Giants to-day, Ott and Lindstrom hitting home runs in a ten-inning duel. Pittsburgh fell before the Boston Braves, who are staging a revival.

In the American, Washington's fall after a long sequence of victories seems to have affected the side. They lost again to-day to Detroit.

Cleveland blanked Boston, Harder pitching, and scored nine runs, a homer being registered by Burnett. Goetz and Burns hit home runs for St. Louis, but the Browns were badly outthit by the Athletics, who scored 13 runs from 19 safe hits. Cochran hit for the circuit.

SILVER'S UPWARD TURN

SLIGHT ADVANCE IN DOLLAR

The Hongkong dollar rose 1/8th this morning to 1s. 4d., but there is nothing doing on the local market, Shanghai being closed.

In London, silver rose 5/16ths ready and a farthing forward, the advance being due to small offerings. China banks and India bought, on a steady market. After the official fixing, the market ruled firm, business being done at 1/16th over the rates.

In New York, silver prices are unchanged, with the market irregular. Futures are down.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

You will be in velvet at the first Autumn dinner parties if you are wise.

For the new suede velvet, as dull and lustrous as anything you ever saw or touched, is moulding itself to the fashion silhouette in a beguiling manner.

The woman shown gazing at her mirrored reflection is wearing a lightcoloured velvet that sheathes the hips closely, follows a brassiere effect across the front, and has two velvet straps that meet in a point at the neck, starting at the low décolleté.

A band of kolinsky, which goes around the neck in front, fastens at the waistline in back, where the two ends of the fur meet.

There is nothing for the woman who is seated to grow excited about, since she is sure that her dark velvet gown, with its now high empire silhouette, will bring her through the evening successfully.

The cape treatment is as popular now as in the summer, and the two velvet flowers on the bosom of her gown add interest. The back doesn't sink to any depths at all. The form-moulding line is followed by the velvet.

The third frock, which goes in for a floral outburst, strings white flowers around its shoulder cape. The cowl neck, as much the vogue as ever, is used. And ends of the velvet that make the gown tie in front at the left side.

This gown also features the capelet effect in its loose, draped sleeves. Sleeves are assuming an important role in formal frocks. An arm that slips out of a flowing drape of some sort is supposed to be much more alluring. Then, too, as shoulders broaden through this effect, hips retreat, which is a style point worth remembering.

HEALTH HINTS.

The Digestive Process.

Let us pause and consider for a moment the miracle of the digestive process, through which every particle of food we eat has to go before being transformed into blood, bone, and muscle.

The changes that take place in the food during this process really begin in the mouth, a fact which indicates very clearly the great importance of thorough mastication. The more thoroughly the food is ground by the teeth and mixed with the saliva, the better it is prepared for the stomach and intestinal digestion.

The absorption of food also begins in the mouth and continues almost throughout the entire alimentary canal, though the process is carried on mostly in the stomach and small intestine. After the entrance of the food into the stomach the digestive fluids gradually permeate it and, with the aid of the churning motion of the organ, cause changes that slowly bring the contents to a state where the particular elements of nourishment needed by the body at the time are assimilated.

Energy Required

As soon as the work of digestion is well under way, the blood vessels begin to absorb nourishing particles of digested matter through the thin membranes that separate them from the contents of the stomach. By a wise provision of Nature, the delicately constructed organs of digestion have the power of choosing the particular food elements needed by the body, so that only the nourishing portions of the food are actually absorbed. The "waste" is rejected, but has its work to perform as it gives a requisite bulk to the food and facilitates the peristaltic action of the bowels.

The ordinary diet of the average person contains, in addition to the usual nourishment and waste, many elements that by improper preparation are made difficult to digest, and yet others that are stimulating in their influence. Meat, for instance, contains a considerable amount of impure foreign matter which acts as a stimulant to the functional system. For this reason the ordinary mixed diet is the cause of much functional strength being wasted; energy is required to eliminate the foreign and impure matter in meat, and energy is also wasted in digesting unwholesome and improperly cooked foods.

Natural uncooked foods, on the other hand, contain no stimulating elements and no undue waste. They are not injured and de-vitalised by cooking; they are not made difficult to digest by prolonged and unwholesome preparation. Moreover, they contain all the nourishment needed in order to maintain the strength of the body with a minimum of waste.—By A NURSE.

THE OUTLOOK

In one sense, the recognition of Manchukuo by Japan to-day marks a new chapter in the history of the troubled East. In another, and more correctly, the event must be regarded as the continuation of a policy towards the completion of which the Japanese have long set themselves. Unhappily, the step must almost inevitably increase the tension between Japan and China. For that reason alone, aside from other and equally important considerations, it must be regretted. There can now be little doubt but that Japan has hastened recognition of the new State in order, as she thinks, to present the League of Nations, when it comes to consider the Manchurian question in the light of the Lytton Report, with a fait accompli. It is very much open to question, however, whether the League, and the Powers outside the League, will be prepared to accept the situation in the light which Japan would desire them to do. Actually, of course, the position has not undergone any real change by Japan's recognition. The mere formality of recognition of a bogus State by its creators does not transform that State into a genuinely independent entity. Japan may think she has accomplished something by recognition; but the outstanding fact is that no other nation has yet recognised Manchukuo—a circumstance which, in view of Japan's obvious self-interest, immensely detracts from the significance of the Japanese action. It remains to be seen whether in the long run Japan's methods will pay.

Japanese recognition of Manchukuo at any time without waiting for like action on the part of other Powers would naturally arouse suspicions; the hasty decision to make the move on the eve of the presentation of the Lytton Report has served to increase these suspicions. If not an actual affront to the League, it certainly smacks of marked impatience to get on "according to programme." Moreover, the Tokyo Government knows full well that its policy in Manchuria has been called into question as conflicting with the Kollogg Pact and the Nine-Power Treaty. Yet it is prepared to brush aside all these considerations and proceed with its plans for the domination of the territory. This is, in one respect, the most serious feature of Japan's determination to go her own way, for, as a leading Shanghai journal has remarked, it depreciates the validity of international agreements by making them entirely subordinate to the welfare of one party, without regard to the sanctity of the pledged word. In other words, it rejects the path of patient international negotiation and discussion, which we had hoped had come to be recognised as the right way of adjusting world disputes.

Count Uchida, when he announced Japan's determination to recognise Manchukuo, went so far as to suggest that the policy of which this is the outward sign would eventually lead to a better Sino-Japanese understanding. There is, and never could be, any evidence of such a probability. The opposite effect is, in fact, being produced. And herein there lies a very real danger to the peace of the East. Viewed in this light, the situation is far from reassuring, but it is to be hoped that even at this late hour there will be no fresh outburst of feeling to aggravate an already over-charged situation. The times are pregnant with dangerous possibilities. We can only trust that nothing will be done to create a new upheaval.

Esquivias Wants a Book.

The Mayor of the Spanish town of Esquivias is of the opinion that Great Britain should return to Spain all the first editions of "Don Quixote" which lie in the British Museum. The interest of Esquivias in this matter resides in the fact that this village of New Castile was the birthplace of Cervantes. In the whole of Spain there is only one solitary first edition of Cervantes' great work, and that is hidden in a vault of the National Bank at Madrid, where it can be seen only by the director of the Public Library, the President of the Republic, and Ministers of the Government. Some day the historian may arise who will properly evaluate the importance of this fact in Spanish history. Who knows how many great men have turned their attention to librarianship or politics who would have devoted their abilities to other branches of activity had it been possible in any other way to obtain a glimpse of "Don Quixote" in all the glory of its first edition? Not, indeed, that the word "glory" appears well chosen. For the first Spanish edition was an unimpressive affair. The first translation of "Don Quixote" into any foreign tongue was made into English in 1620, and more translations into English have been made since than into any other language. Spain, on the other hand, was slow to perceive its merits. It was inclined to hold the opinion, afterward sponsored by Ruskin, that "Don Quixote" laughed chivalry away, and made a very noble man ridiculous. But that, of course, was a mistake. What Cervantes ridiculed was not Don Quixote, but the silly romances which Don Quixote, and the Spanish people generally, at that time read. It was these that he scattered to the four corners of the earth with great gusts of scornful laughter. In doing so he performed for Spain a considerable service—as considerable a service, in fact, as any modern Cervantes would perform for England and America if he ridiculed out of existence the more foolish sentimentalities which so frequently monopolise the cinema.

DAY BY DAY

THE MORID CURIOSITY OF HUMAN NATURE STILL PERSISTS, IN SPITE OF THE PROGRESS OF CIVILISATION.

It is announced that the marriage of Cyril Edwin Gahagan of Hongkong and Eileen Barbara Medina of Aldershot, England, will take place shortly.

Mr. Charles Bond, for many years Manager of Messrs. Gande, Price and Co., Ltd., has joined the staff of the Wine and Spirits Department of Messrs. Dowell and Co., Ltd.

The Royal Observatory reports that a moderate anticyclone is central over South Manchuria. The typhoon is crossing North Luzon to the immediate south of Appari, on a N.N.W. track. Local forecast:—N. E. winds, fresh; fair.

Some alarm was caused in the vicinity of the junction of Hollywood Road and Peel Street at 9.40 p.m. yesterday when the Fire Brigade was summoned to an outbreak of fire at No. 70 Hollywood Road. Two engines were immediately despatched and on their arrival it was found that the chimney of the second floor had been set alight. There was no difficulty in putting out the flames.

D. Andrews, the young son of Chief Inspector Andrews of the Peak Tramways, living at 15, Bowen Road, was the victim of a savage attack by a dog in Bowen Road yesterday. It was stated that the lad was severely bitten about the arm and leg, by the dog which belongs to a neighbour, Mr. Charleston. It has been found necessary to admit the lad to hospital for treatment.

Misfortune befel a Chinese passenger 25 years of age, when he attempted to leap on to the ferry pier at Yau-mat before the launch had properly tied up. He failed to clear the intervening space, and to the horror of the other passengers and a large number of people on the pier, was seen to stumble and drop backwards. He was caught between the launch and the pier and crushed. The unfortunate man was in a critical condition from internal injuries when conveyed in an ambulance to the Kwong Wah Hospital. A somewhat similar mishap occurred yesterday in the harbour, when a coxle fell between two junks and was crushed. He, too, was critically injured and was taken to hospital.

WAR IN "GREEN HELL"

By JULIAN DUGUID

THIS recurrence of bloodshed between Bolivia and Paraguay has made me homesick for the jungle. For exactly the same thing happened in 1928, when I was on an Expedition to those benighted lands. Reading the newspaper reports of this "fortin" abandoned and that "fortin" attacked brings home the inner detail like a blow: I can see the sun, and the vultures.

Bolivia and Paraguay, as everybody knows, are struggling for a block of territory called the Chaco. It is a vast, inhospitable jungle lying between the north of Argentina and the fringes of the Amazon; bounded on the east by the Rio Paraguay, on the west by the formidable Andes. There is little water in this desolate abode except in the rainy season, when the whole land is waterlocked. Not much of a country, one would presume, on which to waste life. And yet, in a way, one would be wrong.

Bolivia is the Switzerland of South America. Through treaties, misfortunes and ill-considered wars she is in the hopeless position of lacking a sea-board. The Pacific Ports were lost in the Chilean War of 1879. The bandit-President Melgarejo ceded the Paraguay River-Port of Corumba, to Brazil, for a diamond star. And, for a while, Bolivia slept. She was too occupied with Andean tin to recognise the supreme importance of an egress to the sea.

Meanwhile Paraguay extended; quietly, without drums. She invaded, always peacefully, the Chaco land on the west of the great river and gave concessions of Quibacho to foreign tannin manufacturers. By the time Bolivia awoke her property had gone.

Now came the difficulty. Paraguay would not retreat. Bolivia, like a person robbed in his sleep, felt deeply about the loss. She had no port. Always she returns to that. She has no port. If Paraguay would grant her one hundred yards of river frontage with free access to the interior, Bolivia would say no more. Paraguay might keep her foreign concession.

Paraguay, of course, speaks differently in the councils of the world. Bolivia, she says, has ports—two of them—beautifully situated on the river. But she forgets to state that Puerto Suarez is a mud lagoon in the dry season; that Gaiba's entrance is guarded by a Brazilian Custom-house. Bolivia, potentially a country which is amazingly rich in agriculture, cannot dispose of her goods.

That is the theory of the case. The practice is more difficult. Firstly, war in South America is utterly foreign to our European conceptions of that tragedy. There is no trench warfare, no big guns; bombs may explode in forest and do little harm beyond lacerating the undergrowth. Distance is everything and water atrociously rare. Cattle cannot feed; there is no grass. Only jungle.

The problem of feeding an army is almost insurmountable. When I went through that country we found it hard enough to feed eight men; and our animals were skeletons before the end. How can an army, as we know the term, exist? The answer is that it cannot. There are no railways, and beef cannot go on the hoof. Quite apart from the insects, which sap the soldiers' vitality, there would be simply not enough food to go round.

I believe the misconception of this war which exists in Europe lies in the Spanish word "fortin." "Fortin" calls to mind a fort, a concrete, gun-emplacement affair with barbed wire, glassis, and embrasures. This is absurd to one who knows the country, but understandable in a stranger. A "fortin" is a palm-thatched erection, just four poles and a roof-tree, without even the dignity of mud walls. These posts are capable of supporting a hundred or so men and are, naturally, very easy to ambush. A corresponding number of attackers creep forward in the night, a volley through the glare of a camp fire . . . and a "fortin" has been captured. Obviously it is equally difficult to hold.

I remember well in the Christmas week of 1928 the war-just of the Bolivians in Santa-Cruz. A howling crowd surged round the Cathedral Square and was addressed by impassioned orators from the green balcony of the Club. "Rios de sangre"—rivers of blood—yelled the speakers, and the mob took it up in a sound like the crash of a wave. They were 500 miles from the front and would have to march every yard of the way. We had just come in from that road; we knew the terror of the insects and the leagues without water or food. We listened to the enthusiasm and said: "Poor devils. Will they shout like this after their march?" Luckily for them, the rainy season descended a week later and, like Caesar in Gaul, they went into winter quarters.

What will be the outcome be? Quien sabe, as they say themselves. The war-fever may drag on from year to year, fierce with the suns of autumn, damped by the mighty rains. Certain enough it is that it can never develop into war as we know it employing like numbers of troops. It will be a guerrilla affair, bitter as the bigger thing and as important to the combatants themselves. Men will die, gloriously, shot in a dash among lianas, from ambush; and Urubú, the culture, will be their last friend. Other men will lie upon the ground and pray for the hall of bullets to pass over them; but they will be rare. Bolivians and Paraguayans are brave fighters.

Quite frankly, I do not know the outcome. The country I do know—the horrible nature of its thirst and hunger and death from festering wounds. I do not envy the soldiers, when patriotism of the heady kind shall be proved by the pains of the field.

But of this I am sure—Bolivia is too totally concerned to surrender her just claims. Geneva may talk and Washington threaten; yet these places are curiously remote from the Chaco. The hot-blooded people of the South who are shut off from traffic with the sea will never consent to an arrangement which denies them that hundred yards of river-bank.

BE STRONG LIKE US

By Edward Kelly, Strong Man.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. A. D. Spoor has just gone Home to England.

We are here to tell you that the laws of gravity got a serious knock-back when he is on the job. Mr. Spoor is the Principal of the Sando Weight-lifting Club, and we saw him hold a seance the other day.

In one case he was 9½ lb. over bogie, and muscles stood out on him like balloon tyres.

He busted two or three records, including his own, which was a mean trick on himself.

In cream trousers and no singlets these weight-lifters do these things.

They heave on the weights, muscles stroll up and down their back, and after they have nearly strangled themselves, someone announces in a solemn, my-goodness-how-did-he-do-it voice that another record has gone phut.

The sight of all this strenuous effort scared us. We went outside to have a smoke. We said to a chap seven feet by three, who was sitting outside, "Do you also lift weights?"

"Yes," he replied, "I do a bit of it."

We asked him to have a Capstan. He said he wasn't allowed. We tried to engage him as chucker out of shroffs. He said shroffs were too much and too many for him.

That bucked us up. We went to Mac's and ordered a frankfur with mustard.

And would you believe us, we were able, single-handed, with an arm press, to squeeze the end out of it.

"I wonder if he stopped writing to me just because the postal authorities were too strong for him."

LOITERER SENT TO GAOL

DETECTED BY TWO GIRLS

With a recent armed robbery fresh in their minds, two young Chinese ladies, of 3, Wing Wah Terrace, closely questioned a man whom they found loitering on the staircase on Tuesday night, with the result that the stranger fled without having given a satisfactory explanation of his presence.

The girls raised the alarm and a student of the neighbourhood took up the chase. He caught the intruder and handed him over to an Indian policeman on the latter's arrival on the scene.

When charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning it was stated in evidence that the man when questioned said he was visiting a policeman friend, but, knowing there was no policeman living in the neighbourhood, he was further questioned.

The defendant, who had six previous convictions for similar offences, was sentenced to three months' hard labour and placed under police supervision for two years.

PERJURY & FRAUD IMPLIED

LEAVE TO APPEAL SOUGHT

The Full Court, comprising the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kemp) and the Pulane Judge (Mr. Justice Wood) this morning heard an application by the Tai Tak firm for leave to appeal against a judgment recently given in favour of Ng Koon Tai, defendant.

The original action was for $800, being money lent by the plaintiff to the defendant.

After the issue of the writ, the plaintiff under an interim attachment seized a junk belonging to the defendants but during the hearing, the trial judge made an interlocutory order for the junk to be returned.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon, instructed by Mr. C. Y. Kwan, appeared for the plaintiff, and intimated that the appeal would be against both the interlocutory order and the judgment.

After lengthy argument, the Chief Justice informed Mr. Sheldon the Full Court was against him in the interlocutory matter but had not reached a final decision and would hear his further argument later.

Mr. Sheldon, referring to the judgment, said the case had not been tried on the proper issues. The judgment he said, was against the weight of evidence, there being no reason, on the evidence, to disbelieve the plaintiff. The evidence of the plaintiff, books and a promissory note, were either forged or proved. This was a question of the credibility of witnesses and, he added, no-one was going to say that the judge's mind below was not influenced by the evidence which was produced before him in the interlocutory proceedings in this action. In his submission, plaintiff had corroborated up to the hilt whereas defendant had not corroborated whatever.

Later Mr. Sheldon submitted that providing leave to appeal was granted, that he must appeal for the case to be heard de novo. It was a matter of great importance to the men concerned, as they did not like to have it in the air that they had been guilty of perjury, fraud and forgery. He thought leave to appeal should be granted. Their Lordships reserved judgment.

DESERTED JUNK DISCOVERED

ARMS ON BOARD CONFISCATED

Whilst patrolling the Yaumati typhoon shelter yesterday afternoon, Revenue Officer Humphreys observed a deserted Class IV junk, which was moored to the Praya wall. Closer examination of the craft aroused his suspicion, with the result that he carried out a thorough search of the boat. His suspicions were confirmed when he found in different compartments a revolver and a rifle with several rounds of ammunition.

These weapons were produced at the Kowloon Magistracy before Mr. Fraser this morning, when Inspector Elston applied for their confiscation. In doing so, he expressed the opinion that the boat very probably belonged to a gang of pirates, who left it in the shelter. It bore no number nor any identification marks.

His Worship ordered the weapons to be confiscated.

Inspector Elston also applied for the confiscation of the boat, but his Worship, after referring to the Ordinance, said there was no provision made there with regard to the confiscation of boats under such circumstances, but if the Inspector could produce any authority he would hear a further application.

BRITISH FINANCES IMPROVE

REVENUE UP AND SPENDING DOWN

London, Sept. 14. British Exchequer returns continue to show an increase of revenue and a decrease of expenditure in comparison with last year. The national revenue for the week ended September 10th totalled $2,399,501, exceeding the expenditure by $300,546.

The figures from 1st April to 10th September show that Customs receipts amounted to $73,127,000 an increase of $15,536,000 on last year. For the same period the excess of ordinary expenditure over revenue was reduced from $91,928,505 to $38,138,251.

A sum of $23,159,920 was expended on repaying of $30,000,000 obtained from Exchange in September.

CONCRETE PLAN FOR EUROPE

Seeing that Britain Does Not Get Off

STRESSA PROPOSALS

Stresa, Sept. 14. An interesting stage has been reached at the Danubian Reconstruction Conference.

An outcome of the Lausanne Conference, many people are looking towards the Stressa discussions to pave the way towards general European economic improvement.

The Conference has now adjourned to enable the delegates to submit a concrete scheme to their respective governments.

It provides for the creation of a Central Fund to subsidise Danubian grain exports. The agrarian countries will, in return, negotiate special tariff concessions to the importing countries.

Signor De Micheli, the Italian representative, outlining the scheme, emphasised that all European countries, not merely the countries who import Danubian grain, will be expected to contribute to the Fund.

This provision has reassured the Continental delegates who were afraid that Britain would get off lightly by buying nothing while benefitting by the improved purchasing power of Central Europe.—Reuter.

SHANGHAI AND NANKING KEYED UP

Hankow. There were persistent rumours in Shanghai this morning that the Japanese had ordered a landing at Nanking but this appears to be without foundation. The Mayor has prohibited public meetings and demonstrations for the rest of the week and has issued an appeal, urging the masses not to allow their feelings to sway them in the direction of disorder.

SPECIAL STAMPS.

At the same time symptomatic of the situation, the Ministry of Communications has ordered the use of a special stamp during the week beginning September 18 bearing characters which interpret the meaning: "Remove the Disgrace. Save the Nation and Recover the Lost Territory."

The most careful preparations have been taken against disturbances in the principal cities, but there is much anxiety regarding possible developments elsewhere and it is by no means certain that Shanghai and Nanking will escape, though what repercussions there will be it is difficult to forecast.

NOTES TO POWERS.

It is understood that the Mr. Lo Wen-kan has been drafting lengthy Notes to the signatories of the Nine-Power Treaty which he intends to despatch immediately Japan's official recognition of the Manchukuo Government is announced. The ceremony is due to take place at Changchun at eleven o'clock this morning.

It is believed that Mr. Lo Wen-kan proposes to ask the United States to call a conference of the Treaty signatories.—Reuter.

MARINES GOING UP FROM MANILA

Over 400 Men Aboard Transport

Manila, Sept. 14. The detachment of United States Marines stationed in Shanghai will be augmented in a day or two by between 400 and 500 men, who went up to-day aboard the U.S. transport Henderson.

It is stated at American Army headquarters here that it is purely a routine matter and that the men are being sent as reinforcements. Nevertheless, it is perhaps fortunate that greater strength will be present in Shanghai during a critical period.

CANTON PROTESTS.

Canton, Sept. 15. An emergency meeting of the South West Executive Department of the C. E. C. and the South West Political Council met yesterday afternoon to consider the situation created by the Japanese recognition of Manchukuo.

After a lengthy discussion, it was decided to send telegrams to the National Government in Nanking and to the Executive Committee of the Kuomintang, stating that the South West is prepared to undergo all sacrifices to join the nation in offering a stubborn resistance to Japan, and urging the national Government to adopt a stern and positive policy against Japan.

A telegram was also despatched to lodge a protest with the League of Nations.

DOCK COMPRADORE PASSES

DEATH OF MR. LO CHUNG-KUE

Widespread regret will be felt at the death, which occurred at his residence, 97, Calne Road, early this morning, after a short illness, of Mr. Lo Chung-kue, J.P. compadore of the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Co., Ltd.

The deceased gentleman, who was 69 years of age, was educated at Queen's College and joined the Dock Co. 40 years ago as assistant to his father, succeeding him as compadore a few years later. He had, throughout his life, taken a very keen interest in public affairs.

He had been twice Member of the Board of Directors of the Tung Wah Hospital, being Chairman of Directors of the Hospital in 1921. He had also served on three occasions on the Committee of Directors of the Po Leung Kuk, being Chairman of that Institution in 1927. He was President of the Ying Wah College Boy Scouts and a Member of the Court of the Hongkong University, Chairman Director of the Hongkong & Yau-mat Ferry Co., member of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and of the Chinese Merchants Club, Chairman of the District Dispensary and Vice Chairman of the Compradores Association.

He was appointed Justice of the Peace in 1922, and in 1923 the Chinese Government conferred upon him the Chi Ho Decoration of the 4th Class in recognition of his services in connexion with the typhoon and flood disaster in Swatow and district. Mr. Lo had also been three times a Member of the District Watchmen's Committee.

He is mourned by two daughters and five sons. Mr. Kun-un, B. Sc., formerly Chief Engineer of the Swatow Municipal Government; Mr. Lo Kun-ying, of the Robert Dollar Steamship Co.; Mr. Lo Kun-hang, and Mr. Lo Kun-kan, who share the duties of assistant compadores of the Dock Co., and the youngest son, Lo Kun-ho who is still at school. Mr. Lo's wife predeceased him in 1928.

Mr. Lo's purse was always open in the cause of any charity whether Chinese or foreign, and he will be very sadly missed by a host of friends, both in the foreign and Chinese communities.

LADY ROBBED BY FOOTPAD

PEPPER THROWN INTO HER EYES

An unpleasant encounter with a footpad was experienced by Mrs. P. B. Caruana in Bowen Road yesterday. When the man attempted to dispossess her of a handbag, Mrs. Caruana bravely resisted, but was finally forced to surrender it when pepper was thrown into her eyes.

Mrs. Caruana, who lives at 13a Macdonnell Road, was walking along Bowen Road in the direction of Stubbs Road, when, at a spot 200 yards beyond the Military Hospital, a young Chinese appeared, and followed her with such persistence that she became alarmed. With the view to avoiding him, Mrs. Caruana sat down on a bench on the roadside, with an air of unconcern which she was far from feeling. Not to be defeated by such strategy, the man, who had walked on for some little distance, turned on his heels and came back to where she was sitting. In broken English, sounding something like this "Missus, give me twenty cents," he made clear his intentions. As she resisted, he clutched her handbag, and a struggle ensued, the victim refusing to let go of her property.

Taking a handful of pepper from his pocket, the robber threw it into her eyes, and instinctively she let go of the bag, and he ran off with it.

In reporting the affair to the police, Mrs. Caruana states that her assailant was between 20 and 25 years of age, and was of medium height and build. The last she saw of him was when he ran down the hillside after having secured the handbag.

The handbag, of brown crocodile skin, contained a small sum of money and articles amounting altogether in value to $27.50.

SOLDIER ADMITS HIS GUILT

Pte. George Henry Pitcher, of "B" Company South Wales Borderers, appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning to answer two charges of burglary, and, alternatively, of receiving property which has been stolen recently from Peak residences.

The first charge of burglary related to 362, The Peak, the residence of Mr. D. Bewley, it being alleged that the defendant, after having broken and entered the premises with others not in custody, stole a wristlet watch, two brooches, a cigarette case, an imitation pearl necklace, two bracelets, a metal clasp, two mother-of-pearl boddies, a woollen sweater, 90 cigars of various brands, and a tin of 50 cigarettes, some time on September 7.

In respect of a burglary at the residence of Mr. F. M. Ellis, 456, The Peak, the defendant was charged with feloniously and burglariously breaking and entering the house about 12:25 a.m. on September 12 and stealing a hat ornament, a set of dress studs and cuff links, a cigarette case, two lady's handbags, a silver clock, a pair of gents' black shoes, five pairs of gents' golf shoes, 12 handkerchiefs, 11 neck-ties and seven towels.

The defendant pleaded guilty to both counts of burglary, the receiving charges being withdrawn. On the application of Inspector Chester, who was present, Mr. Schofield sentenced the defendant to 12 months' imprisonment.

THE EFFECT OF BAD TENNIS DECISIONS

DRAMATIC INCIDENT RECALLED

Neutral Umpires Necessary

I doubt if there is any game in the world so difficult to umpire as lawn tennis. Particularly is it difficult to play through a long and important match without some bad decisions. Whether it be difficult or not there is no denying that in every big contest mistakes of such a flagrant character have been made that the players have almost been demoralised.

Lawn tennis players have often been accused of bad sportsmanship because, so it is said, they dispute the umpire's decisions. But do they? Remember that in cricket only one decision is needed for a batsman to retire. A batsman cannot, if given out, dispute the umpire. I do not think for one moment that every batsman is such an angel that he believes the umpire is always right. Indeed, I know of Test match batsmen who, after they have reached the pavilion, have resented the decisions that sent them there.

GOOD SPORTSMEN.

In lawn tennis decisions have to be given in every game, and if a match lasts for two or three hours many decisions have been given throughout the match. If a player has what he considers several bad decisions he cannot retire to the pavilion to let off steam, but he has to remain and finish the match, and may possibly have more bad decisions.

In spite of that I remember few players in recent years who have taken decisions badly. Take, for example, the recent Davis Cup match, America v. France, when J. Borotra played W. Allison in that crucial rubber on which victory for France depended. Borotra had made a glorious recovery from two sets down to two sets all, and in the fifth set everybody—and I do not exclude the linesmen—became frantic with excitement.

Every point was cheered, and when the men crossed over at each odd game they were greeted again with rousing cheers. The air became electric when Borotra saved the ninth game (Allison led by 5-3 and 40-15 on his service), and when he reached forty love (or three points for five all) in the next game the excitement was indescribable. Borotra missed the easiest of smashes. Had he won, this story would not have been written, for the point in question would never have arisen. Then came the shoe incident, and Borotra lost the next two points, playing with one foot bare on the court.

Imagine Allison receiving hostile attention from the crowd as if he were responsible for Borotra playing on after he had burst his shoe! All these incidents were not conducive to calmness of the not conducive to calmness of the players or the crowd. Anyhow, at deuce, Borotra changed his shoes and lost the next point afterwards, which made Allison for the third time within a point of the match. Remember, he had been followed by brilliant play of Borotra on the first two occasions!

A DRAMATIC MOMENT.

Everybody was hushed. Indeed, you could almost feel the silence. The French crowd looked at Borotra and I am sure must have prayed that he would serve an ace. He missed his first service and paused. That pause was to conquer his own anxiety. Then he feebly delivered his second. "It must be a double fault," I said to myself as I saw the ball leave his racquet and travel in a high trajectory.

The ball lodged on the court; Allison returned it, but not with the intention of making a point, but carelessly jubilant because he believed, like ninety per cent. of the huge crowd, that it was a double fault and he had won the match. But there was silence from the linesman and the score was brought back to deuce and Borotra was saved.

What about Allison? He looked aghast at the umpire—and then, with a shrug, he played on and lost. Was that bad sportsmanship? I thought he showed wonderful self-control.

No doubt the linesman was excited and forgot to follow the ball with the intention of giving a decision. I do not believe that because he was a Frenchman he gave Borotra the point. But I am sure the time is ripe when lawn tennis should take a cue from

EX-HANTS BOWLER IN NEW ROLE

Chatting with Jack Newman during my visit to Hastings, I asked the old Hampshire cricketer how he liked his new duties as an umpire. In reply he said: "I am gradually settling down, but I often feel the urge of bowling especially when the day is warm and sunny."

"Upon the occasion of a recent match I went so far as to put an old ball in my pocket. I wanted to handle it unobserved and recall the old days."

Newman has not yet done with active cricket. In a few weeks time he will resume a coaching engagement in South Africa and thereby hangs a tale concerning one of his winter trips out of England.

Some years ago Newman broke one of his little fingers and as a result he wore for protective purposes a little black finger-stall. But let Newman continue the story:

"Confident that I had not gone over the crease I said to the umpire, 'What's the matter?' In reply he said gravely: 'We have received instructions to take careful note of bowlers and I notice that you are wearing a finger-stall to help you spin the ball.'"

"To me," continued Newman, "the suggestion appeared so grotesque that I was inclined at first to make fun of it, but the umpire was in dead earnest in spite of my explanations. I learned afterwards that the umpires had observed a number of duplicate finger-stalls which I carried about with me and that the word had gone forth to watch me."

"People who know anything about spin bowling are perfectly well aware that any extraneous methods to aid spin must have a rough surface, whereas, as you see, my innocent finger-stall is quite smooth and shiny."

"But in order to convince the watchers, I bowled a few hours later at the nets without my finger-stall and by great good luck I was unusually successful upon that occasion in making the ball break."

Eventually the Umpires' Association sent Newman a graceful apology.—Frank Thorogood.

WHY THEY FAILED

BRITISH WOMEN TENNIS STARS EXPLAIN

Hamburg, Aug. 12. To-day I spoke to the four English women lawn tennis players who, although they were expected to carry all before them, met with little success in the German championships here.

Although their form was disappointing there is little reason to suppose that our women players are falling behind the girls of other countries.

I learned to-day that Miss Stammers, who was defeated by Fraulein Payot, of Switzerland, by 6-3, 6-4, took the courts strongly against the advice of her doctors, while Miss Betty Nuthall, who was defeated by Fraulein Schauburg, was clearly at nothing like her best. Even star players must have off-days.

Mrs. Whittingstall, experienced more difficulty than most of the others in becoming accustomed to the Continental type of ball in use here, to which must be added the handicap of a soft court, which troubled all the English representatives.

LAND PLANE DOES 309 M.P.H.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 8. Major Doolittle, the famous American aviator, who on September 1st established a new world record for a land plane of 302.16 miles an hour, bettered this mark in the national air races here to-day, covering a three-kilometre course four times at an average speed of 206.287 miles an hour, he completed one lap in 1.454 minutes, and the other three in 1.454, 1.454, and 1.454 minutes.

WHIRLWIND CRICKET

VICTORY SNATCHED WITH LAST BALL

Surrey served up twenty minutes of REALLY brighter cricket at the Oval, during which time they beat both Middlesex and the clock.

At ten minutes to six spectators were leaving the ground, satisfied that the game would be drawn. It was then that the fun began.

Hendren, batting brilliantly for Middlesex, looked like playing out time when he attempted what seemed to be a safe run. Whiffled, fielding as substitute for Hobbs, who had hurt his knee, had other ideas.

From where he retrieved the ball at deep square leg the wicket was at such an angle that he could see only one stump but with a long throw he knocked this stump down. Hendren was out, and Surrey suddenly found that they had a chance to win.

They set out to do this. Their batsmen galloped to the wickets and smashed at the bowling. This is the time-table of their great effort:—

6.10.—Innings started: 57 runs wanted.

6.14.—F. R. Brown out: 49 wanted.

6.16.—P. G. H. Fender out: 48 wanted.

6.26.—Shepherd out: 12 wanted.

6.27.—S. A. Block out: 11 wanted.

6.27½.—D. R. Jardine in; Ratchiffe scored a six.

6.30.—Jardine scores a 4 off the last ball of the match and Surrey won by six wickets.

That was not all the excitement, however. In their over-enthusiasm the Middlesex fielders twice missed Shepherd before he was finally run out trying to steal an extra run, and Jardine was also missed off the first ball he received.

DARING BANDITS

COMPRADORE KIDNAPPED FROM SHIP

Tientsin, Sept. 14.
A daring case of kidnapping was reported from Tangku last night. When about 20 armed plainclothes men appeared at Jardine's Wharf, and manned all the exits. Six men boarded the steamer Tingsang and captured the compradore and stowedore, and then withdrew to an unknown destination.

It eventually transpired that the godown man was also kidnapped.
The said appears to have been conducted with great efficiency and precision.—Reuter's Special.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

He picked up his hat and cont.
"Where are you going, Dan?"
He stood with one hand on the doorknob. Dan paused long enough to say the one word,
"Out!" then disappeared.

Cherry sank into the big chair.
The tears she had fought back for so long came unchecked. "He's gone!" she sobbed. "He's gone without me! Oh, what will I do?
What—will—I do?"

There was only Pinky the kitten to console her and Pinky was engaged in tearing up a paper sack.

Dan Phillips strode to the window. He stood looking out at the darkness, hands clasped behind his back.

There was a single light in the large room. It came from a lamp near the davenport and it glowed softly beneath the parchment tinted shade. From the shadows across the room a low voice came.
"But you're restless!" Brenda Vail said. "Is anything wrong, Dan?"

Phillips turned. "There's nothing wrong," he said. "Nothing at all. But, Brenda, I can't come here any more. I've got to stop seeing you."

"You silly boy! What on earth are you talking about?"

"The young man moved forward so that his face was illuminated by the circle of light. The lines of his cheeks were drawn tightly.
He went on stubbornly, "You know what I mean, Brenda! You know things can't go on as they have been—!"

"But, Dan, you don't mean that!"

Brenda Vail had risen. She was dressed in black velvet and out of the shadows her face looked very white. The outline of her rouged lips was like a double heart.

"You don't mean you're going to —forget about me? You don't mean you're not coming to see me?"

"I haven't the right!" Phillips protested huskily. "I have to think of—someone else, Brenda.
Things can't go on this way. I tell you, I can't stand it!"

The woman's voice dropped to lower pitch. "I know," she whispered. "It's been hard for me, too.
Oh, Dan—"

She was in his arms then and
Phillips was kissing her.

U. S. AMATEUR GOLF

MCURVIE DEFEATED

OUIMET BREAKS A RECORD

Baltimore, Sept. 14.
Eric McRuvie, the only British contender to pass into the competition proper in the American Amateur Golf Championship, was eliminated in the first round to-day.

This is the match play stage of the competition and McRuvie was beaten by three up and two to play by Yates, a comparatively little known American player.

The match which attracted the biggest gallery also provided the most sensational exhibition of golf. Francis Ouimet beat Voigt by six up and five to play, despite the fact that Voigt was playing first-class golf.

Ouimet, however, played superlatively well. He did the first nine holes in 30 strokes, six under four, giving Voigt not a chance. Ouimet's feat created a championship record. The previous best over nine holes was 31, set by Bobby Jones when he won the championship in 1927.—Reuter.

YOUTH WITH A REVOLVER

SENT TO PRISON FOR A YEAR

Sentence of a year's imprisonment was passed on a young man named Lai Fook by Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning on a charge of possession of a revolver and four rounds of ammunition.

Detective-Sergeant Goodwin said he went to Tai Nam Street, Shamshuipo, at about 7 a.m. on September 10 and after waiting for about an hour, he saw defendant enter No. 301. He followed him and on searching him found the revolver tied to his girdle.

Inquiries made later by the police revealed that the defendant came from a village near Chinwan. He went back to his village on September 9 and returned with this revolver, which, the police alleged, he

NEW PLANE FOR R.A.F.

LATEST AMPHIBIAN AIRCRAFT

London, Sept. 14.

An important extension to the scope of the work of the Royal Air Force, is marked by an order for "Cloud" amphibian aircraft which has been placed with Saunders-Roe Limited. These aircraft can operate on land, water and in the air.

With the wheels wound down into position the aircraft can take off from an ordinary land aerodrome and when the pilot has wound the wheels up into position at the sides of the boat, the hull can alight on water.

When taken ashore, the machine can taxi to the slipway and the wheels having been wound down can taxi up the slipway without further preparation. The latter from an operational point of view represents a great advance.

Fitted with two Armstrong-Siddeley double Mongoose engines of 340 horse-power, the machines can cruise at 100 miles an hour with a top speed of 120 miles hour. Their endurance with a full load is four hours.—British Wireless.

HARBIN TRAIN SMASH

AMERICAN ESCAPES BANDITS

Harbin, Sept. 15.

Two Americans were aboard the C.E.R. express which crashed down an embankment some forty miles from Harbin, killing or injuring over a hundred persons, during the week-end.

Mr. Henry Hilgard Villard, son of the editor of the Nation, was one, and Mr. Henry W. Kinney, in the employ of the South Manchurian Railway, was another.

It is learned that Mr. Kinney was captured by the bandits responsible for the disaster, but managed to escape.

intended to use for a robbery.

Asked if he had anything to say in view of the serious charge against him, defendant steadfastly refused to say anything.

BONUS DEMAND REVIVED

QUICK REFUSAL BY PRESIDENT

Washington, Sept. 14.

The action of the Resolutions Committee of the American Legion Convention now meeting at Portland, Oregon, in adopting by 21 votes to 9, a resolution asking for the immediate payment of the War Veterans Bonus, has drawn an immediate response from President Hoover.

The President indicates that there is no possibility that he will change his attitude. He says he has consistently opposed the payment and he must, in the public interest, continue his opposition.

He points out that the payment of the bonus would involve the provision of $2,250,000,000 and that such a payment would be fatal to the entire recovery programme.

The Convention's Foreign Relations Committee has favourably reported to the Legion on resolutions denouncing the cancellation of war debts and opposing the adherence of the United States to the World Court.—Reuter.

CHINA IMPRESSES LEAGUE

ALL OBLIGATIONS BEING MET

Geneva, Sept. 14.

The announcement that China is meeting all her obligations, despite the loss of revenue arising out of the events in Manchuria and Shanghai, has produced a most favourable impression in the League of Nations Secretariat.

The Chinese Government has just notified the Secretariat of the payment of $349,000 which includes an instalment on account of arrears and a contribution for the current year, besides $325,000 on account of the expenses of the Lytton Commission.

The Chinese Finance Minister further announces that China will fulfil all her international loan obligations, despite the fact that the salt revenue from Manchuria has not been transferred to Nanking.

Simultaneously, the Japanese Government has informed the Secretariat of the payment of $350,000 as the Japanese share of the Lytton Commission expenses.—Reuter.
